Girl Tells of Weston's Wooing

'LOVED HER JUST THE SAME'

Weston, Defendant in $50,000 Suits, Explains Letter to Miss White

Miss Mildred White, the Boston milliner, took the stand today in her suit against Horace Greeley Weston, Brookline carpenter and foreman, for $50,000 for alleged breach of promise. The suit is being heard at Dedham before Judge McLaughlin and a jury.

In a low, sweet voice, with frequent pauses to master her emotion, Miss White told of her friendship with Weston, extending over a period of eight years, during which time she claims they were engaged to be married; told of receiving him in her apartment and of reading to him as he lay and smoked.

She said that he promised to marry her shortly after their first meeting at the Hotel Somerset, where the two frequently lunched together, and that he renewed the promis of many later occasions, up to 1914.

Her testimony, and that of Miss Margaret McDermott, who told of hearing Weston refer to Miss Sarah B. Andrews, the sixty-five-year-old woman who claimed Weston as her fiance, as "a crazy old fool," were the chief features of the proceedings.

Miss White testified that she had admitted to Weston having been friendly with another man, who was not named in the testimony; that Weston had said to her: "I'm sorry, little girl, but it makes no difference to me." She said that Weston was very affectionate and called her his "dear little girl."

Shortly after their first meeting,

Declare Airplanes Crossed Atlantic During War

By International News Service.

Paris, Nov. 20.—British aviators in Paris assert that the Atlantic has already been crossed by airplanes, although the information was kept secret during the war.

There is no official confirmation of these statements.

GEN. CROZIER SLATED FOR NEW POST

Reported Commander of Northeastern Department in Boston Will Go to Capital

Washington, Nov. 20.—For the fifth time since its establishment, a change is to be made in the command of the Northeastern Department. Current reports about the headquarters of the War Department as to the effect that Major-General Crozier will return to a post in Washington and thus relinquish his Boston command.

Major-General Crozier is slated for retirement in February and the understanding is that he will have another staff position before that time. He was formerly chief of ordnance in the department. Just who will succeed him at Northeastern headquarters is more or less problematical.

The story persists, however, that Brigadier-General John W. Ruckman will once more be returned to the post of command. General Ruckman was in charge at Boston prior to General Crozier. He was particularly active in vice prosecutions during his incumbency. Just when the changes will be made is not known.

APPROVE ACTION OF GOVERNOR IN LOGAN CASE

A flood of letters, telegrams and messages congratulating Governor McCall for his attitude in the case of Colonel Edward L. Logan, who has been displaced as commander of the 101st Regiment in France, poured into the Governor's office today.

While the Governor's office treats the messages as personal, it was stated that the tenor of them all is: "Clean up the mystery."

The authors agree universally with Governor McCall that the people of Massachusetts have a right to know why Colonel Logan was retired from command of his famous fighting regiment, which he led at the border and throughout the great war, just as the hostilities were coming to a victorious closes.

PRESIDENT TO RETAIN CONTROL

Will Establish "Foreign White Houses" in European Capitals

By JOHN EDWIN NEVIN.
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Washington, Nov. 20.—Following a long conference at the White House last night between President Wilson and leading Democratic leaders, it was learned today that the so-called "reconstruction" program of the Republicans will meet with stern opposition.

The chief executive is understood to have informed the conferees that until the peace treaties are actually completed any change in methods might prove disastrous. As a result it is expected that an effort will be made to continue the War Trade Board and agencies of that character as at present and that there will be no reconstruction committee named to recommend legislation changing existing methods.

The President will outline his reasons for such action in his annual message to Congress which will be delivered at the opening of the short session the first week in December. At that time, on the eve of his departure for Europe, he will make plain the reasons that are compelling him to make the trip abroad and incidentally he is expected to answer the criticism of his action in going.

VISIT TO BE PROLONGED.

The belief was growing here today that the time consumed by the chief executive abroad will be much greater than had been anticipated. Adminis-

BOLSHEVIST GOVERNMENT ROUTED

London, Nov. 20.—The Bolshevik and pro-German government of the Ukraine has been overthrown by anti-Bolshevist troops, it was stated in a dispatch from Copenhagen today.

The Bolshevik national assembly members have left Kiev and a republican anti-Bolshevik provisional government has been set up in the city.

London, Nov. 20.—A Copenhagen dispatch received today by the Exchange Telegraph states that a German army has been sent to the Eastern (Russian) frontier, where alarming conditions have arisen. It is assumed these conditions have to do with the Russian Bolshevik menace.

Foe to Liberate All Prisoners With Only 3 Days' Supplies

London, Nov. 20.—According to advices from The Hague, it is the intention of the German government to liberate prisoners of war en masse after having provided them with three days' provisions.

In the present condition of transportation in Europe such provisioning would be woefully inadequate and would undoubtedly result in heavy mortality among the released prisoners, whose vitality has been lowered by the privations undergone in captivity.

EXPRESS RATES INCREASED BY McADOO

Additional Revenue Made Necessary by Raise of Wages Granted July 1

Washington, Nov. 20.—Increases in express rates in the territory north of the Ohio and Potomac rivers and east of the Mississippi River ranging from 16 to 17 cents per hundred pounds and increases in the rates throughout the rest of the United States ranging from 10 to 12 cents a hundred pounds were ordered today by Railway Director McAdoo.

The increased express rates were inaugurated in order to raise an additional revenue of $24,000,000, half of which will go to railroad revenue and half to express revenue. This amount of additional revenue is made necessary by the increase in wages, aggregating $16,000,000, granted to express company employes July 1 last.

The increase granted today was authorized by the Interstate Commerce Commission after officials of the commission had studied the urgent recommendations of Director McAdoo.

BRITISH GET SHIPS OF FOE

Impressive Spectacle When Submarines Are Turned Over to Admiral Trywith

London, Nov. 20—Germany began surrendering her navy to the allies today, twenty-seven submarines being turned over to a British fleet in the North Sea at dawn.

A great fleet of battleships and destroyers will give itself up to an allied fleet in the North Sea tomorrow amidst scenes as memorable as any known to history. An American battle squadron will take part and King George will witness the German surrender.

After the submarines had been turned over to Admiral Trywhitt's fleet this morning, the flagship Curacoa began steaming towards Harwich Harbor, followed by the now helpless U-boats. The submersibles carried only small navigating crews.

Admiral Trywhitt's squadron was made up of light cruisers and destroyers which had arrived at the rendezvous last night to receive the former terrors of the seas. It was ready and waiting at daybreak when the German craft began coming up through the fog. Berlin had reported by wireless that the submarines left Kiel yester-

Retiring Boches Cheer First U. S. Girls on German Soil

By ROBERT S. DOMAN.
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Berne, via Paris, Nov. 20.—Letitia Curtis, of San Francisco, and Cheta Geary, of Denver, Col., attached to the Swiss commission of the Red Cross, were the first American women to enter Germany since the beginning of the war. They crossed the Rhine into Baden at Loerrach, on Sunday, some days before the army of occupation was due.

The girls drove a motor truck filled with supplies for the feeding of hundreds of Italian, Russian, French and British and the few American prisoners. Prussian officers acted courteously toward the Americans, holding up retreating artillery convoys on congested roads and bridges to permit the motor truck to pass.

Retiring German soldiers with red flags thrust into the barrels of their rifles cheered the girls, who had placed an American flag on their motor truck. The soldiers cheered vociferously when they learned that the Kaiser had fled, and hurrahed for the three republics—America, France and Germany. When the motor truck stopped the German soldiers gathered around it offering belt buckles, shrapnel helmets and bayonets as souvenirs.

DANIELS HEARD IN SECRET ON NAVY PLAN

Explains Demand for Big Increase in Number of Capital Ships

By International News Service.

Washington, Nov. 20. — Secretary Daniels personally submitted to the House Naval Affairs committee this afternoon the Navy Department's plans for the future maintenance of the United States Navy on the highest plane of efficiency.

The secretary explained that there is an impelling necessity for increasing the size of the navy. He conferred with the committee behind closed doors not even the customary stenographer being present.

The committee is engaged in framing the naval appropriation bill for the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1919, for which estimates aggregating $2,441,900,000 have been submitted.

To explain the need for the expenditure of at least the greater part of this sum, despite peace economies, was one object of the secretary's visit. He also laid before the committee as a justification for the construction of ten super-dreadnoughts, six battle cruisers, and 140 smaller vessels under the proposed three year building program, his reasons for believing that the United States would continue to require a great navy, if only for policing purposes.

MEN RELEASED FROM NAVY TO BE RESERVES

Washington, D. C., Nov. 20.—All officers and enlisted men of the United States Navy who are discharged or relieved from service because of the end of the war will be placed in a reserve class subject to recall to active service in any emergency, Secretary Daniels announced this afternoon.

LOST SEA POWER IN SINGLE BATTLE, SAYS PERSIUS

London, Nov. 20. — (By British Wireless Press)—The hope that the German fleet would be able in a second Skagerrack battle to beat the British fleet rested upon bluff and lies of the German naval authorities, writes Captain Persius, famous German naval critic, in an article in the Berliner Tageblatt.

Captain Persius has chosen the moment when the finest vessels of the German navy are about to be surrendered to the allies to publish his sensational revelations about the German navy.

In August, 1914, Germany had about 1,000,000 tonnage in warships while Great Britain had more than double that amount and, thanks to the mistakes of Tirpitz, the German material was quite inferior to the British, Captain Persius points out.

In the Skagerrack battle the German fleet was saved from destruction partly by good leadership and partly by favorable weather conditions. Had the weather been clear, or had Von Scheer's leadership less able, the destruction of the whole German navy would have resulted. The long range British guns would have smashed completely the lighter armed German ships.

VON TIRPITZ OBSTINATE.

As it was, the losses of the German fleet were enormous, and on June first it was clear to every thinking man that the Skagerrack battle must be the only one of the war. On all sides Von Tirpitz was advised to construct only submarines but he remained obstinate.

On October 1st several members of the Reichstag made an earnest

Berlin Workmen Protest Constituent Assembly

London, Nov. 20.—The Berlin council of workmen and soldiers in a stormy meeting voted against the summoning of a constituent assembly and demanded a congress of workmen and soldier delegates, said an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Copenhagen today. Marines at Bremen, Hamburg and other German ports are becoming suspicious of the new Berlin government, claiming that it is bringing the country to a counter revolution.

WORLD STRIKE PLANNED TO SAVE MOONEY

Seattle Council Votes for International Walkout to Protest Conviction

By International News Service.

Seattle, Nov. 20.—An international labor strike in the United States, Canada and England as a protest to the conviction of Thomas J. Mooney, under sentence to be hanged in California for the San Francisco Preparedness Day bomb explosion, is the plan of the Seattle Metal Trades Council here today.

After voting in favor of the strike, the council decided to send a cablegram to Arthur Henderson, British Labor Party leader, asking that organized labor in that country take similar action. In the resolution adopted, the date of the strike if left open. Notice of the Seattle councils action was forwarded to the American Federation of Labor today. The Seattle Central Labor council at its meeting tonight is expected to vote in favor of a Mooney strike.

WILSON MAY SPEND SEVERAL WEEKS IN EUROPE

WOULD HANDLE EXECUTIVE TASKS BY CABLE TO WASHINGTON

tration officials, however, insisted again today that it will be in no way necessary for him to delegate any of his power to Vice-President Marshall.

Plans for the President's trip already are being worked out by the Navy Department, Secretary Daniels announced today. One of the large liners, until recently used as a transport, will be placed at the disposal of the chief executive and his party, and a convoy composed of a battleship and several destroyers will be provided. The name of the liner was not revealed.

The arrangements that are being made to keep the President in complete touch with all that is transpiring within the United States all of the time he is away from Washington are of the most elaborate character. In addition to naval wireless service, a single cable line is to be held entirely for executive business.

There will be little need for the President to be in Washington during January or February, officials said today. The short session of Congress will be devoted entirely to the completion of the revenue bill and regular revenue measures. There will be no opportunity for any radical legislation. Consequently, it was pointed out the President very easily can remain in France as long as it is necessary to complete the principal provisions of the peace treaty.

"FOREIGN WHITE HOUSE."

It is expected that a regular courier system will be maintained between Washington and France. What will practically amount to a "foreign White House" will be established wherever the Chief Executive is quartered and messengers will make the trip back and forward across the ocean on the vessels that will be in use by the Navy transporting supplies one way and returning soldiers the other. At no time will more than ten days elapse between the completion of a document here in Washington and the presentation to the President in France, where such presentation is necessary if the plans now being completed are carried out without a hitch.

Many invitations from cities and municipalities in France, England and Italy have come to the President-elect. When the work of reoccupying Belgium is completed to the extent where natives of that unfortunate land may claim again their homes, invitations from there likewise will be forthcoming.

The burden of all these which have come is the same—they want Woodrow Wilson to pay them the honor of a call. If the President would ever undertake to visit all the places that want to see him, and hope to see him, he would be gone from this country for a year at least, it is believed.

MAY REPRESENT SOUTH AMERICA

It was reported in a diplomatic quarter here that the seven Latin-American countries that followed our lead and declared war on Germany had decided to "jump" their interests at the peace conferences and to ask President Wilson to be their spokesman. The State Department, however, knew nothing of the report.

If it should later prove to be correct, the President's position as the leader of all nations would be tremendously fortified by such a wonderful evidence of faith reposed in him by nations that went to war solely because they knew the United States was fighting for the right.

It is believed the President may be an actual delegate, and that after his return to this country he will be represented at Versailles by proxy, Colonel House, the President's personal adviser, who is now in France, will serve in this capacity for him, it is suggested. While developments both here and abroad make impossible the final choice of our peace envoys, it is practically agreed that the following men will be among the lot:

Secretary of State Lansing, Secretary of War Baker, Elihu Root and Colonel House.

Overnight gossip eliminated both Secretary of Agriculture Houston and former Justice Charles E. Hughes.

There remains the possibility, however, of former President Taft and Justice Brandeis being numbered among "those present" at the peace table, and Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, also has been mentioned.

The President, it is said, will give particular attention to fixing the principles by which future freedom of the seas will be interpreted. This is one of the points left open for discussion at the peace conference.

Farmers' National Party Asks Wilson to Name One of Its Men as Peace Envoy

By International News Service.

Washington, Nov. 20. — President Wilson was asked today by the National Farmers' Headquarters' to name as one of the peace commissioners a representative of the farming interests.

A letter signed by George P. Hampton, managing director, says:

"The necessity for promptly settling the basic terms of peace is emphasized by the anarchy threatening the central empires and the feeling of unrest and uncertainty among our allies as well as in our own country. The privileged interests which profited from war and from present economic conditions have served notice in perfectly plain language that they have not learned the lessons of this war. We believe that with the long centuries of failure of peace by peace-making bodies to evolve a working system of international relations, the present occasion requires an entirely different approach to this problem.

"We respectfully ask that you would take the initiative in asking all belligerent and as at least the large neutral nations to appoint delegates to a peace congress which shall sit simultaneously with the peace conference of accredited delegates, at the same place. We believe that such a peace congress should have a large membership and should represent the several interests in each belligerent and neutral country which would, of course, give agriculture a large and predominating membership.

"We also ask whether you would not, in appointing the delegates of the United States to the peace conference, select men who are outstanding in their knowledge of the problems involved and in their record of service of fundamental democracy in this country. Would it not be appropriate to have one of the delegates from the United States to the peace conference a representative of the agricultural interests of the country."

Such participation by a representative of the farmers in the drafting of the peace treaty would ensure such hearty indorsement from the farmers of this country as is essential to secure the whole-hearted cooperation of farmers in making effective the terms of the treaty which must logically involve on the part of all nations of the world the renunciation of certain predilections and the subordination of certain national aspirations to the larger good."

Sympathy Pleas in Behalf of Germany Denounced by Leading Paris Newspapers

By International News Service.

Paris, Nov. 20.—Sympathy pleas for Germany were strongly attacked by the Paris press today. The Midi declared that Germany is able to pay for claims, adding, "the people that were able to make a long-range gun to bombard an enemy capital have sufficient constructive imagination to recuperate."

It is regarded as probable that the peace preliminaries will not begin until the 15th of December, after the general election in England. Secretaries will soon be at work, however, clearing up technical details.

The chaotic conditions in Austria-Hungary and Bulgaria and lack of definite information about the real program of the new German government will contribute further delays.

Information quotes a prominent diplomat as saying that the allies have already accomplished their main objects in the armistice terms, which are being carried out with great energy and that peace "will only be made with responsible governments."

It will, perhaps, require two or three months for the holding of a general election in Germany and to establish a stable government. "In the meanwhile," added the anonymous diplomat, "we have the means of compelling Germany to pay up."

London, Nov. 20.—John Dillon, Irish Nationalist leader, made the following exclusive statement to the correspondent of Universal Service:

As a matter of fact, there is not the slightest chance of representatives of Ireland being allowed to enter the peace conference. If the Sinn Fein leaders attempt to approach the conference in the name of Ireland, their reception, I feel convinced, will be very painful and also, to them, of a surprising character."

The first batch of U-boats to reach the designated spot consisted of four squadrons, each containing five undersea boats. Others followed. The formalities of the surrender were hastily conducted on the Curacoo.

British cruisers were told off to lead each of the German squadrons to port. The final plans called for the transfer of the submarines to Captain Addison at Harwich. After British crews are placed on board the U-boats the German seamen will be placed upon a transport and taken back to Germany.

King George arrived at Edinburgh this morning. He is to inspect the destroyers and the British grand fleet with the accompanying American battle squadron before the surrender of the German fleet tomorrow.

REAL TRUTH ABOUT THE GERMAN NAVY

Appeal to the army command and not to the naval staff with the result that an order was issued terminating the construction of German battleships in order that the material might be employed in building U-boats.

In the meantime there was an acute scarcity of materials that it became necessary to disarm a number of battleships and take the metal. In this manner at the beginning of 1918 twenty-three battleships were disarmed, among them one newly-built cruiser.

At the beginning of this year, concludes Captain Persius, the German navy consisted only of dreadnaughts and battleships of the Helgoland, Kaiser and Margraf type and another few battle cruisers. All of the ships which Von Tirpitz constructed from 1897 to 1905 at a cost of innumerable millions had been destroyed and the U-boats were unable to fight against the British warships.

Persius in his article goes on to say that Von Cappelle constructed very few submarines and work was continued only on the construction of bigger U-boats. The report that Germany's submarine losses were negligible is untrue, Persius says. In 1917 eighty-three submarines were constructed and sixty-six were destroyed. In April of that year Germany had 128 U-boats, and in October, 134. In February, 1918, Germany had 136 submarines. In June of the same year the German navy had 113. Those were called "front submarines," though as a matter of fact very few of them were actively occupied.

In June, 1917, when conditions were favorable for submarine activities only 15 per cent. were on active duty. Thirty per cent. were in harbors and 55 per cent. were undergoing repairs. Submarine crews were not sufficiently educated and trained and looked with great distrust upon this weapon. In the last month of the war it was very difficult in Germany to get men for submarining crews, Captain Persius admitted.

SAYS GERMANY BLUNDERED ABOUT U. S.

By JOHN T. PARKERSON.
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

With the British Army on the Western Front, Nov. 19.—Delayed—"Germany's greatest mistake was in underestimating the power of America," declared General von der Lancken Wakenitz, virtual ruler of Belgium during the four years of German occupation, in a remarkable interview with an American civilian just before he left Brussels.

"But for that Germany would have been victorious," continued the German officer. "We have been living in anxious days but have the situation well in hand now. We shall clear out of Belgium peacefully. It may take Germany ten or fifteen years to pay up the allies' demands, but we will pay.

"Our population are good workers and I am not afraid of a wave of Bolshevism."

The German officer declared he had no love for Prussianism, repeating that Prussianism had made many mistakes, but he thought that things "were coming to a head."

"If the allies give Germany an opportunity to use half a million men, law and order can be established within three weeks," added the German. He then gave a most remarkable answer to the question: "Would it have been better if Germany had won?"

Von der Lancken Walkenits pondered a moment and then exclaimed, "No."

Referring to the food situation he went on:

"We look to your man Hoover. He is big enough and has brains enough not to allow Germany to disappear."

The officer seemed anxious, however, to learn just how Mr. Hoover felt toward Germany.

"What Germany needs most now," continued the officer, "is wheat and sugar. These, he said, are needed immediately.

The German was anxious to find out whether the house he had occupied in Paris before the war had been damaged by the Germans' long range bombardment of the city. He admitted then that he had once had hopes of being "military governor" of Paris. He had promised a friend a photograph of himself in the streets of Paris.

He then inquired about Joseph Calliaux, who is under charges of disloyalty in France, and wanted to know whether or not Calliaux had been shot. Von der Lancken Walkenits smiled that he had not, as he had in the peace offers to Belgium in 1917, which resulted in a Belgian cabinet crisis.

During the interview young Count von Moltke, a nephew of the former German chief of staff, was standing in a corner of the Kommandatur. He was called over by his superior and seemed terribly depressed.

"What are we coming to?" he exclaimed.

Both he and his superior talked in tones of greatest bitterness.

"It was Von Mackensen's fault," declared Von Moltke, "He would not fight the English. If he had come to the western front in March the Germans would have taken Amiens and the Channel ports and the war would have been over. But Von Mackensen refused."

LOAFERS REST EASY; LAW IS SUSPENDED

Loafing is legal again. Hostilities ceased when Governor McCall issued a proclamation today, suspending his famous "anti-loafing" law.

This law went into effect by a proclamation of the Governor on June 12. It was a war-work measure, which provided that all able-bodied Bay State youths and men, from eighteen years up to fifty, must be engaged in some regular and useful occupation for at least thirty-six hours a week for the duration of the war.

This "anti-loafing" law was apart from the noted "work or fight" ruling issued by Provost Marshal-General Crowder of Washington. The "work or fight" ruling provided that men of draft age, if not drafted, must be engaged in some occupation essential to prosecution of the war. It was under this ruling that baseball players were taken into the army.

In suspending the "Anti-Loafing" Law, Governor McCall said that "it appears that no further occasion demands the continuance in force of said proclamation."

The Governor deems it for public interest that the proclamation be withdrawn.

The withdrawal will not affect any rights which have accrued, any punishments or penalties which have been incurred or any suit, prosecution or proceeding now pending under the provisions of the act.

The Governor also retains his right to issue a new proclamation resuming the law wherever he deems it advisable.

It was estimated, at the time the law was put in effect, that there were 20,000 so-called "loafers" in the State. Several arrests and prosecutions resulted.

WIFE GETS DIVORCE WITHOUT ALIMONY

Frieda Peterson Schaefer was granted a divorce from Alexander Schaefer today on the grounds of desertion. Her plea for alimony was denied, however, as she is earning $60 a month as a telephone operator and her husband is getting only $30 a month in the United States Service.

DIVISION OF THE BEATEN GERMAN FLEET RAISES MANY QUESTIONS

BIG SHARE GOES TO BRITAIN

By JOHN TEMPLE GRAVES.

Washington, Nov. 20.—The announcement that the German fleet is to be divided among the Allied nations, the great bulk going to England, is exciting no little comment and speculation among statesmen and thinkers in the capital.

Not that anyone in America protests or denies the justice of the proposed division. By reason of her vastly greater losses in tonnage sunk or destroyed by Germany, England is entitled to the larger reparation from the German navy.

But the enormous accession which this division will make to the already paramount British navy raises many questions which will surely and most seriously engage the attention of the peace conference, in long discussion.

U. S. NAVY IN 2D PLACE.

It is thought here that the attitude of Secretary Daniels of the navy in standing for the original large war program for the coming year carries a far-seeing and admirable diplomacy which the Secretary and the President have worked out for the discussion of the great events of the conference.

It is a diplomacy without hands on the tables after the Wilson fashion and is designed to have its friendly and legitimate bearing upon the great question of the freedom of the seas and the league of nations, than which our country has no more important issues before the nations.

The collapse of the German navy leaves the United States clearly and easily in possession of the second navy of the world. England's losses and our own magnificent development during the war, but for this accession to England from the German fleet, would have brought the American navy nearer to an equality with Great Britain than any ever hoped in this generation. Of course this division, now generally regarded as assured, without again the difference between the naval power of the two great nations and leaves England without a rival on the seas as of old.

It is practically sure that the question will be presented at Versailles that England's absolute mistress[hip] of the seas is matter for the supreme consideration of a world convention met to make peace and preserve peace with equality among the nations—but as we have destroyed the all-dominant military power on the land there should be some armament limitation which would bring under international limitation, or rule at least, such all-controlling power on the seas.

ENGLAND'S ADVANTAGE.

However friendly the discussion among friendly and allied nations, it is certain to be threshed out before the council adjourns and the whole subject of earnest and serious consideration and wise reference of view.

If the league of nations which is so near to President Wilson's policy as the only guarantee of perpetual peace is perfected, the preponderance of the English navy will be no menace and no bar to the peaceful balance of power among the nations of the world.

The seas will, under that league, be policed by the combined navies of all nations, and the policy of arbitration will be universal. But until that league or some other binding international agreement is reached for the settlement of commercial and other international disputes the council may take for granted that England's mastfline and naval supremacy will leave the other nations at a disadvantage which, beyond the universal plan of justice for which we fought and won, damages.

This, then, is what Secretary Daniels and the President are thought to have in their minds in the resolute prosecution of the plan to build our American navy to the splendid proportions outlined in the program.

BIG NAVAL APPROPRIATION.

If on a matter of national policy England designs to keep her navy far and away the greatest in the world, and if England is confronted with the evidence that America has entered the field with a similar policy to build to an equality with England on the sea—showing or soon the full equal with England in her merchant marine—and since England must know that in her present financial condition we will be able with greater riches and facilities to equal if not surpass our ally in the naval competition, then the British statesmen will the more readily agree to an arrangement to preserve equality or to establish the freedom of the seas upon a plan that will satisfy the nations in the agreements of the council.

What the estimates for the naval appropriations bill for the next fiscal year call for is a total of $2,841,900,000—$1,500,000,000 more than the present year. This appropriation will provide for our full part in the policing of the world, and will also put us in position to do whatever the future may demand of us.

Having once been caught unprepared the great republic does not intend through carelessness or neglect to be found wanting in any future emergency.

The peace of the world is to be preserved for many years to come by naval force, and our country does not feel that it should be behind its part in this great service to a world which now feels under such vast obligations to her.

ANITA STEWART

2 West 45th Street,
Fifth Avenue,
New York City.

November 18, 1918.

Editor, Boston American
Christmas Basket Fund,
Boston, Massachusetts.

Dear Sir:

Enclosed herewith please find my contribution for $250.00, for the Boston American Christmas Basket Fund.

I have known of the good work being done by Mr. Hearst and the Boston American for several years, and I believe it to be as direct and helpful a charity as there is anywhere. I feel that our gratitude for Victory this year ought to make us contribute more generously than ever before. I have always felt a deep sympathy for the poor and I realize that this year, on account of the hardships of the war and the high prices of food, they will not be very bitter hardest. Poor, little kiddies are doubtless wondering if they going to have any Christmas cheer at all.

I know that my friends will contribute generously; and I hope your Christmas Basket Fund this year will be the most successful in the history of this charity. You can count on me to do anything in my power to help this fund.

If there is anything I can do for you, let me know and I will be glad to do it.

Most sincerely,

A S/N Anita Stewart

Letter received by the AMERICAN in which Anita Stewart announces her contribution to the Christmas Basket Fund.

ANITA STEWART GIVES $250 TO BASKET FUND

Anita Stewart, beloved by millions of moving picture fans and one of the best known women in the world, is the latest contributor to the Boston AMERICAN'S Christmas Basket Fund.

The check for $250 from Miss Stewart, with a pretty letter indorsing the fund, was mailed from New York by the star just as she was about to step onto the Twentieth Century Limited on her way to California.

"You can tell the Boston AMERICAN that I have this charity of theirs very much at heart and that when I arrive in California I am going to do something more for the fund which is to be in the nature of a big surprise."

KEEPS SURPRISE SECRET.

What this new surprise is to be the dainty star of "Virtuous Wives" refused to say, but she smiled brightly as she boarded the Pullman, and she left the impression that she had planned big things for this fund.

Miss Stewart is said by her friends to be one of the biggest hearted women in her profession. The poor people and those less fortunate than herself in having the genius and personality to earn the tremendous salaries which she does, hold a big place in her heart, and many are the acts of kindness which she has done unknown to the world at large.

Her contribution to the Christmas Basket Fund is just another of these charities and shows her great heartedness.

Anita Stewart needs no introduction to the American public. Her work for the past many years has placed her in the highest places in her chosen profession, and literally millions of people in this and other countries flock to the screen to worship at the feet of this star.

Just now she is delighting her public with two world beaters, "Virtuous Wives," a truthful story of life in New York's society, and in that other play, "In Old Kentucky," which has touched the hearts of two generations.

MORE CONTRIBUTIONS NEEDED.

Contributions to the fund are beginning to come in more rapidly and with only thirty-three days to Christmas they can't come any too fast.

The boys and girls are contributing much more generously.

These young people have it in their power to swell this fund to a great extent if they will only go to very little trouble.

Boys and girls who are sure of their Christmas dinners should remember that there are many poor children in this city who are not and cannot give a little toward this fund.

The Boston AMERICAN is sending a basket to all boys and girls who contribute, which makes them members of the junior committee of this fund and entitles them to an invitation to the big Christmas festival to be held around the Christmas tree on the Common three days before Christmas.

CONTINUES BAY STATE HEARING TO DEC. 4

After arguments on the proposed discontinuance of 116 miles of trackage as set forth in the petition of Receiver Wallace B. Donham of the Bay State Street Railway, Judge James M. Morton, Jr., in the United States District Court today, continued the hearing to Wednesday, December 4, at 10 a. m.

Counsel for cities and towns affected by the proposed curtailment, scheduled to go into effect December 1, voiced strong objections.

Receiver Donham was represented by Attorney Samuel Pillsbury, who said that the receiver's reason for petitioning for the closing of the lines, aggregating 119 in number, was the "physical impossibility" of operating them through the winter months, and as many were at present in so unsafe condition it was thought that December 1 would be the proper time for discontinuance.

Judge Morton said he would not take the responsibility of ordering the discontinuance pending the hearing, of such lines as were considered by the receiver unsafe for travel.

SENATORS APPROVE OF DAVIS AS AMBASSADOR

Washington, Nov. 20.—The Senate Foreign Relations Committee this afternoon approved the nomination by the President of John W. Davis to be ambassador to Great Britain. Confirmation of the nomination by the Senate in executive session is expected tomorrow. Mr. Davis now is on his way from Switzerland to the United States to secure his credentials as ambassador to the Court of St. James.

JUNKERS PLOT NEW GERMAN REVOLT

Prince Eitel in Potsdam for Conference Over Fate of Hohenzollern Dynasty

By International News Service.

Zurich, Nov. 20.—Prince Eitel Frederick, son of the former Kaiser of Germany, has arrived at Potsdam to discuss the future of the Hohenzollern dynasty, said a dispatch from Berlin today.

London, Nov. 20.—A junker plot to undo the machinery of the new German government is under way.

The formation of a new democratic popular league is announced in Berlin dispatches which names among the leaders of the movement Count von Bernstorff, former German Ambassador to the United States. Dr. Walter Rathenau, long the executive head of the economic forces of the empire, and Friederich Naumann, author of "Mittel-Europa," the work that definitely stated before the war the whole plan of Pan-Germans.

These men, under the old regime, were all prominently associated with the junker party.

The league demands immediate convocation of a national constitutional assembly.

REACTION IS SETTING IN.

There are strong indications of a reaction against the revolution throughout Germany. Everywhere people are asking what the new government, what Chancellor Ebert, is doing for them and the Leipziger Volks-Zeitung openly charges in an editorial that the revolution was "manufactured solely to secure better peace terms."

The German government is reported to be replacing the black-white-red imperial colors with the black, red and yellow of the ancient Roman empire.

An airplane of unidentified nationality bombed Stockholm Castle, Holland, near the ex-Crown Prince's retirement place, it is reported from Amsterdam. The castle was badly damaged. There were no casualties.

CHARGE BOYCOTT BY BREWERS ON 'DRY' FORCES

Documents Offered to Show Move Against Manufacturers

By International News Service.

Washington, Nov. 20.—The United States Brewers Association sought to compel all American industries to refrain from prohibition activities by organizing a "blacklist" of manufacturers who engaged in or approved of prohibition activities on the part of their employes, Major E. Lowry Humes declared before the Senate judiciary sub-committee this afternoon.

Major Humes produced hundreds of documents from the files of the association tending to prove that a boycott of manufacturers hostile to their trade was maintained by the brewers.

Among the concerns appearing on an "unfair list" taken from the brewers' files were: The Western Union Telegraph Company, the Cadillac Motor Car Company, John Wanamaker, P. J. Heinz Company, the Packard Motor Car Company, the Blackstone Hotel, Chicago; Proctor and Gamble, Ivo Motor Car Company, Maryland and Baltimore Chemical Company, Sherwin-Williams Company, Spencer Brothers.

With Hugh P. Fox, secretary of the Brewers' Association, on the stand, Major Humes sought to prove to the Senate judiciary sub-committee today that the National Association of Commerce and Labor was organized by the brewers for "political purposes only."

The national association was formed in 1912 by Percy Andre of Chicago, whose contract with the brewers called for $40,000 a year for five years. It is made up of brewers and members of allied trades. Andre's job, he said, was "to educate the people for the vote." Fox feared that Andre had been overpaid.

The brewers had also paid ten months' salary to Louis Hanusperger, head of an organization of foreign language newspapers in the United States which had promised to swing all his papers in line with the forces opposing prohibition, Fox believed.

One of the methods of inducing magazines to publish articles opposing prohibition, Fox said, was to promise to buy large numbers of the publications. He said he knew of cases where interested for distribution among soldiers.

He revealed that the brewers association had subscribed to George Sylvester Viereck's two publications, the Fatherland and the International Monthly, and to numerous others.

RULE ON LICENSING FOR EXPLOSIVES IS MODIFIED

The modification, however, does not relieve those using explosives from the responsibility of procuring licenses.

ACCUSES MAN OF STEALING HER HOUSE

Medford Woman Finds Only Land on Taking Prospective Tenant to See Cottage

Mrs. John Gilliland accuses Francis McLean of house-stealing.

Not stealing something from the house, but taking the whole house and leaving nothing but the place where it was.

McLean says he never stole the house. He merely tore it down, as per telephone instructions from the owner.

The case was heard in Malden Court today and was continued until December 5 for decision by Judge Bruce.

Mrs. Gilliland lives on Sheridan avenue in Medford. She owned a $2,000 cottage at No. 53 Clifton street in Malden.

The cottage had been empty some months. Mrs. Gilliland was glad when a prospective tenant came to her. She drove the man to Clifton street in Malden to show the cottage she had to let.

Imagine arriving at your vacant house with a possible tenant and finding a vacant lot instead. No house, there, not a shingle of it. The house had "evaporated" the premises as they say in amateur talk.

Mrs. Gilliland, as she explained in court, started on the trail. She learned that Francis McLean of Chelsea had been there a fortnight or so ago had torn down the house and carted away the lumber.

McLean declared in court he had torn down the house on orders received over the telephone from the owner. He was positive about the telephone order.

The question was raised whether he might not have been mixed on location and torn down the wrong house. No, he was sure it was the house at No. 53.

Mrs. Gilliland asserted that she never gave orders, telephone or otherwise, to tear down or anyone else, to tear down her cottage.

This exploit was one of the most dramatic naval events of the war and resulted in the partial blockading of Zeebrugge Harbor.

Here Is Something Most Interesting About Good Coffee

Some years ago the W. S. Quinby Company decided to put a coffee on the market that would represent the best coffee grown. By "best" was meant that no coffee should be superior, regardless of the higher price the dealer might charge.

La Touraine, the Perfect Coffee, was the result. The W. S. Quinby Company bought perfect coffee beans from world-famous plantations, blended and roasted them with the utmost skill and care, and sold this product under the name of La Touraine Coffee.

The flavor and quality of La Touraine does not vary. You simply cannot buy as good coffee under its price, or better coffee above it. La Touraine is, therefore, the most economical coffee you can buy. It insures you the highest quality at a moderate fixed price.

Ask to see the La Touraine Coffee you buy in the bean.

You must remember, "it's the bean"—choice, plump, fully matured—that makes La Touraine the Perfect Coffee. It comes to your grocer in the La Touraine bag, in the bean. He grinds it, or you do at home, whichever is convenient. Then it's always fresh and fragrant. The quality never changes. You can depend on it. It will please you and your family. Try a pound or two—then you will always use La Touraine, the Perfect Coffee.

PUBLIC SAFETY COMMITTEE DISBANDS

Governor McCall, Major Higginson and Others Pay Tribute to Storrow Organization

The Massachusetts Committee on Public Safety—the first, and generally regarded as the most effective civilian war machine in any State in the country—disbanded today.

After twenty-three months of vigorous and patriotic work in the great war of democracy, the committee lowered the curtain" in the presence of the famous committee of 100, which had gathered from the four corners of the State to pay a parting tribute of esteem and affection to the leaders who by their energy and devotion have, as Governor McCall declared, "added another illustrious page to the proud history of the Commonwealth."

Governor McCall, presiding at the farewell ceremonies at the State House, summed up his tribute to the committee and its members in his closing paragraph.

"No State has more nobly responded to the needs of the nation than has Massachusetts. And the history of our State and its participation in the great war would be imperfectly written if it did not contain the story of the accomplishments of the Committee on Public Safety."

The exercises were brief and simple. After Governor McCall paid his tribute to Chairman James J. Storrow, Executive Manager Henry B. Endicott and Mrs. Nathaniel R. Thayer, who was in charge of the women's work, thanked the Commonwealth for the opportunity it gave them to be of service. Treasurer Edmund W. Longley read a financial statement showing the committee's total expenses from the time of its inception amounted to $718,018.34, of which $542,900 had been appropriated by the State and the balance raised by voluntary subscriptions. Major Henry L. Higginson offered his congratulations, and at 10:15 o'clock the committee adjourned "without day."

TO CLOSE UP AFFAIRS.

Governor McCall appointed the following to close up the affairs of the organization: Mr. Storrow, Mr. Endicott, Mrs. Thayer, A. C. Ratshesky, James J. Phelan, George H. Lyman, H. Preston Clark, Charles F. Choate, Jr., John P. Stevens, Mr. Longley and W. Rodman Peabody. Some interesting statements revealing, for the first time, the work of the committee and its individual members, were made, among them:

That the committee was the first formed in the United States and the first to give women an equal opportunity with men for war work for their country.

That Mr. Storrow personally obligated himself for $10,000,000 worth of coal in order to get the "precious fuel" through to break up the coal famine last Winter.

That the officers and administrative heads of the committee refused to accept a penny for their expenses, but spent more than $40,000 out of their own pockets.

That Mr. Endicott had not been to his place of private business in twenty-three months, and that Mr. Storrow had met the senior partner of his firm, Major Higginson, but twice in eighteen months, the second time being today.

That the committee will return about $60,000 of the $100,000 generously contributed by the people of the State in the first call for financial assistance.

McCALL PRAISES STORROW.

"The committee has been a mighty arm of the State government," said Governor McCall. "The assistance it gave the military authorities, the manner in which it mobilized the industries and its effectiveness in keeping pace between capital and labor are everywhere appreciated."

He praised Mr. Storrow as a "genius for organization," Mr. Endicott as "quick, unerring in judgment, balance and patience—a man who rightly takes his place among the great patriots of Massachusetts." He also made complimentary mention of Mr. Ratshesky and Mr. Phelan for their work in the Halifax disaster and of Mrs. Thayer for mobilizing the women of the Commonwealth.

Mrs. Thayer made this modest reply:

"The word I leave is 'Thank you. Boston has given the women of Massachusetts an extraordinary opportunity. But two States, Massachusetts and South Carolina, placed the women on an equal footing with men in war work. We have fought this fight together. I thank you for the women to whom you gave this opportunity."

Major Higginson, as an "outside" observer, felt that the committee members "don't know of what great service they have been." He said that "the community owes them a debt of gratitude which it can't pay."

Mr. Storrow said that in this great war "if a man hadn't a chance to do something, he would have felt miserable."

Mr. Endicott said that Massachusetts "may well feel proud and pleased of the women of Massachusetts." He and Mr. Storrow agreed that the spirit of the State was best represented by the hearty co-operation given the committee in all its work.

Mr. Endicott added that the Food Administration organized by Mr. Storrow is the model of all other States. "If not for Mr. Storrow," he said, "our people would have suffered the cold, thousands of factories would have closed and the prosecution of the war materially hampered."

Brilliant Record of State Public Safety Board

Sent trainload of physicians, nurses, food and clothing to stricken Halifax (first relief expedition to reach city) and raised $600,000 relief fund.

Through Henry B. Endicott settled 150 strikes, involving 500,000 workers.

Organized campaign to double food production for the war.

Fixed food prices and punished profiteers and hoarders.

SHEA, PARDONED IN 1912, AGAIN ARRESTED

Dr. Alfred D. Shea of Cambridge, who was pardoned in 1912 by former Governor Eugene N. Foss and Council from State Prison after he had served only a few months of a seven-year sentence for illegal surgery, pleaded nolo to a similar charge in Middlesex Superior Criminal Court today.

He was ordered to pay $1,000 to the county for court expenses in the case. He paid $500 down and was given two weeks in which to settle the balance.

He was arrested in May, 1917, on a charge of illegal surgery upon a Brookline woman in Cambridge. He was indicted the following month. His plea today of nolo was accepted by District Attorney Nathan A. Tufts.

The pardon of Dr. Shea from State prison in 1912 caused much comment. He was tried in April, 1912, on a charge of having given unlawful treatment to Wanda Wasilewski, a twenty-two-year-old girl. He was sentenced in May, 1912, to State prison for seven to ten years. The following December he was pardoned.

The announcement that Dr. Shea had been freed came as a surprise. It was claimed at the time that the arrangements at the State House were made behind closed doors, that the public was excluded and that none was present at the proceedings save those who wished Dr. Shea set free.

It was declared that there was no examination under oath of witnesses at the pardon hearing.

It was further maintained that the action of the council set aside the evidence, overruled judge, jury and the office of District Attorney Pelletier, and that the council practically set itself up as a final court of appeal.

District Attorney Pelletier was one of the public officials who condemned the council's procedure.

The council said in a statement that it was willing to take one-half the responsibility for the pardon. It declared that the council had adjudged Dr. Shea innocent.

SUES WIFE WHO ACCUSED HIS MOTHER

Mrs. Doris F. G. Thompson, the young Winchester matron who filed a $50,000 alienation suit against her mother-in-law, Mrs. Marion B. Thompson, at East Cambridge last Saturday, is defendant in a divorce action.

It was learned today that recently the young wife's husband, Dwight P. Thompson, filed a divorce suit at East Cambridge, charging Doris F. G. Thompson with having deserted him on July 3, 1915, eleven months after their marriage.

Mrs. F. Thompson was formerly Miss Doris F. Goddu, daughter of William Goddu of Goddu avenue, in Winchester.

She was married at Bellows Falls, Vt., on August 5, 1914, to Dwight P. Thompson, son of Mrs. Marion B. Thompson. The Goddus and Thompsons are socially prominent in Winchester.

In her suit against her mother-in-law, filed last Saturday, young Mrs. Thompson charged that her mother-in-law had alienated Dwight P. Thompson's affections from his bride.

In his divorce libel, which became known today, Dwight P. Thompson says that he and his wife lived at Winchester and at East Haven and West Haven, Ct., and that his bride of seven months deserted him at West Haven on July 3, 1915.

The father asks the custody of three-year-old Jean B. Thompson.

Marshal Petain led a force of French from the southern forest, followed by General Castelnau and General Mangin, who arrived promptly at 1 o'clock in the afternoon.

MASSACRE JEWS IN POLAND AND GALICIA

New York, Nov. 20.—Riots and massacres are occurring daily in Jewish communities throughout Poland and Galicia, according to cable advices received by the Zionist organization of America.

Excesses in Galicia appear to have reached their greatest violence in that section of the country which, it is expected, will become a part of the reconstituted Polish empire. The pogrom wave, which is in full swing, was expected by the Jews of Europe and on their petition a plea for intervention to prevent it was laid before President Wilson by the Zionist organization, it is said.

The worst conditions are said to prevail in the town of Cheranow, where, on November 7, the Jewish militia was disarmed by the Polish police after a clash.

TURKISH LEADERS URGED MORGENTHAU TO REMAIN WITH THEM

CHAPTER XXVI.
Enver Moves for Peace.

My failure to prevent the destruction of the Armenians had made Turkey for me a place of horror, and I found intolerable my further daily association with men who, however gracious and accommodating and good natured they might have been to the American Ambassador, were still reeking with the blood of nearly a million human beings.

Could I have done anything more? Either for Americans, chiefly alone, or for the persecuted peoples of the Empire? I would willingly have remained. The position of American and European, however, had now become precarious, and, so far as the Christian peoples were concerned, I had reached the end of my resources.

Moreover, an event was approaching in the United States which I believed, would inaugurate above the greatest influence upon the future of the world and of democracy—the presidential campaign. I felt that there was nothing so important in international politics as the reelection of President Wilson. I could imagine no greater calamity for the United States and the world than that the American nation should fail to endorse brilliantly this great statesman.

If I could substantially assist in Mr. Wilson's reelection, I concluded that I was certainly wasting valuable time in this remote part of the world.

I had another practical reason for returning home and that was to give the President and the State Department, by word of mouth, such firsthand information as I possessed on the European situation. It was especially important to give them the latest gleanings on the subject of peace. In the latter part of 1915 and the early part of 1916 this was the uppermost topic in Constantinople.

ENVER ASKS AID.

Enver Pasha was constantly asking me to intervene with the President to end the war. Several times he intimated that Turkey was war-weary and that its salvation depended on getting an early peace.

On December 1st, Enver came to the American embassy and reported the results of an interview with Talaat Bey, the Grand Vizier-of-staff, who had said that Germany would very much like to discuss peace, but that Germany could not state her terms in advance as such an action would be generally interpreted as a sign of weakness. But one thing could be depended on: the allies could obtain far more favorable terms at that moment than at any future time.

Enver said now that the Germans would be willing to surrender all the territory they had taken from the French and practically all of Belgium. But the one thing on which they had definitely settled was the permanent dismemberment of Serbia. Not an acre of Macedonia would be returned to Serbia and even parts of old Serbia would be retained; that is, Serbia would become a much smaller country than she had been before the Balkan wars, and, in fact, she would practically disappear as an independent state.

GERMAN OBJECT ATTAINED.

The meaning of all this was apparent, even then. Germany had won the object for which she had really gone to war; a complete route from Berlin to Constantinople and the east; part and a good part of the Pan-German "Mitel Europa" had thus become an accomplished military fact.

Apparently Germany was willing to give up the overrun provinces of Northern France and Belgium, provided that the Entente would consent to her retention of these conquests.

In all this I saw no particular promise of an early peace. Yet I thought that I should lay these facts before the President. I therefore applied to Washington for a leave of absence which was granted.

I had my farewell interview with Enver and Talaat on the thirteenth of January. Both men were in their most delightful mood. Evidently both were turning over in their minds, as was I, all the momentous events that had taken place in Turkey, and in the world, since my first meeting with them two years before.

"I hear you are going home to spend a few months to see your President," said Talaat—this being a peculiar reference to the fact that I was the chairman of the Finance Committee of the Democratic National Committee. "That's very foolish; why don't you stay here and give it to Turkey? We need it more than your people do."

COMPLIMENT MORGENTHAU.

"But we hope you are coming back soon," he added.

"We feel almost as though you were one of us. You and we have really grown up together; you came here about the same time that we took office and we don't know how we could ever get so well acquainted with another man. We have grown fond of you, too. We have had our differences, and pretty lively ones at times, but we have always found you fair, and we respect American policy in Turkey as you have represented it. We don't like to see you go, even for a few months."

I expressed my pleasure at these words.

"It's very nice to hear you talk that way," I answered. "Since you flatter me so much, I know that you will be willing to promise me certain things. Since I have you both here together this is my chance to put you on record. Will you treat the people in my charge considerately, just the same as though I were here?"

"As to the American missionaries and colleges and schools," said Talaat, and Enver assented, "we give you an absolute promise. They will not be molested in the slightest degree, but can go on doing their work just the same as before. Your mind can rest easily on that score."

"How about the British and French?" I asked.

"Oh, well," said Talaat, smiling, "we may have to have a little fun with them now and then, but don't worry. We'll take good care of them."

"And now for the last time I spoke on the subject that had created so heavily on my mind for many months. I feared that another appeal would be useless, but I decided to make it.

"How about the Armenians?"

Talaat's gentility disappeared in an instant. His face hardened and the fire of the beast lighted up his eyes once more.

"What's the use of speaking about them?" he said, waving his hand. "We are through with them. That's all over."

Such was my farewell with Talaat. "That's all over," were his last words to me.

The next day I had my farewell audience with the Sultan. He was the same gracious, kindly old gentleman that I had first met two years before. "Every monarch naturally desires peace," he said. "None of us approve the shedding of blood. But there are times when war seems unavoidable. We may wish to settle our disputes amicably, but we cannot always do it. This seems to be one of them."

I expressed the hope that it might soon be over.

"Yes, we wish peace also," replied His Majesty. "But it must be a peace that will guarantee the rights of our Empire. I am sure that a civilized and flourishing country like America wants peace, and she should exert all her efforts to bring about a peace that shall per permanent."

One of the Sultan's statements in this interview left a lasting impression. This was his assertion that "Russia attacked us." That the simple-minded old gentleman believed this was apparent; it was also clear that he knew nothing of the real facts—that Turkish warships, under German officers, had plunged Turkey into the war by bombarding Russian seaports. Instead of telling him the truth, the Young Turk leaders had foisted upon the Sultan this fiction of Russia as the aggressor. The interview showed precisely to what extent the ostensible ruler of Turkey was acquainted with the crucial facts in the government of his own empire.

WHY HAIR FALLS OUT

Dandruff causes a feverish irritation of the scalp, the hair roots shrink, loosen and then the hair comes out fast. To stop falling hair at once and rid the scalp of every particle of dandruff, get a small bottle of Danderine at any drug store for a few cents, pour a little in your hand and rub well into the scalp. After several applications all dandruff disappears and the hair stops coming out.—Advertisement.

RECIPE TO DARKEN GRAY HAIR

A Cincinnati Barber Tells How to Make a Remedy for Gray Hair.

Mr. Frank Harbaugh of Cincinnati, O., who has been a barber for more than forty years, recently made the following statement:

"Anyone can prepare a simple mixture at home, at very little cost, that will darken gray hair, and make it soft and glossy. To a half pint of water add 1 ounce bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound and ¼ ounce glycerine. These ingredients can be bought at any drug store at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. This will make a gray haired person look twenty years younger. This is not a dye, it does not color the most delicate scalp, is not sticky or greasy and does not rub off."

ADVISES WOMEN IF PRICES ARE HIGH DON'T BUY

Housewives' League President Inclined to Blame Law Makers for H. C. L.

By ELIZABETH ELLAM.

Massachusetts housewives may expect no relief from high prices until Massachusetts elects men to the Legislature who are not afraid to make laws that will oblige the retailer to sell his goods at a moderate profit. Until such time they will simply have to "grin and bear it"—or if they have lost the power to grin, to bear it just the same.

HAS STUDIED SITUATION.

Such is the answer of Mrs. Ida M. Hebbard, president of the Housekeepers' League, to James J. Phelan, aide to the Food Administrator, who states that prices must keep up until the crops of 1919 are harvested, that wages must keep up with it and the laboring man to pay the prices that must be charged for the food that he must eat! Mrs. Hebbard represents 8,000 Boston housewives, and in trying to solve the problem of the housewife in making one dollar do the work of three or four she has learned a good deal about the situation.

"Every time there is a hill before the House they affects food, or they attempts to regulate prices, it is lost. Why? Because Massachusetts has such a set of legislators, and she keeps them year after year. She did something to be proud of when she defeated John W. Weeks, but she should carry the work on and defeat a good many others who are just as conservative," says Mrs. Hebbard.

"Until she does, Massachusetts housewives must not expect to be helped much by legislation. It may be true that prices will remain high until after the crops of 1919 are harvested. But there is one thing that the housewife can do—she can refuse to buy the high-priced articles.

CAN BRING PRICES DOWN.

"If she refuses often enough and loud enough and long enough, prices will come down. The trouble with the average woman is that she grumbles over the prices, but she pays them just the same. Prices would not be where they are today if people refused to pay them!

"Mr. Phelan says that fish will be cheaper! Everybody knows about the fish trust and everybody knows that fish is cheaper almost everywhere in New England than it is in Boston. In Maine, where I spent the Summer—as I always do—I know that the fisherman gets next to nothing for his fish. He isn't the man that gets the profit.

"In Maine, too, this Summer, I saw tons and tons of good milk, sweet milk and sour milk, thrown away because the supply was so far ahead of the demand. And you could buy all the milk that you wanted—the best milk, too—for nine cents a quart. The farmer was satisfied with that—yet look at the price that you have to pay here in Boston for milk. The farmer isn't the man who gets that, either!

EGGS GOING UP.

"When I left Maine, eggs were selling at 50 cents a dozen, and they were making money on them, too. When I got to Boston I found they were 65 cents. Friday I went into three markets. In the first fresh eggs were 85 cents; in the second they were 90, and in the third I found them 92.

Since that day eggs have advanced in price from 92 to $1.38 in some localities. The latter is for the strictly fresh variety.

"It may be true that wages must be kept up for the laboring man. As a matter of fact there never was a time when the laboring man was so well off. He has earned bigger wages since the war began than he ever earned before—and he has spent his money too. He has bought everything he wanted, as he wanted it. I worried a good deal about the laboring man, until I found he could spend more money than I could afford to, and then I didn't worry any more about him!

"But—has anyone thought about the clerk—the little bookkeeper, the middle-class man who didn't get any big wage—whose pay envelope didn't see any big increase to keep up with the increased cost of living? Nobody says anything about him—and he doesn't say anything about himself. He has struggled along through the war, with no chance to do anything but keep his head above water, and it looks as if he must go right along struggling, just the same.

"Women can, of course, refuse to buy foods that are highest. I do it myself—and others must if they keep their living expenses within bounds. It's all very well to talk about 'eggless, butterless, milkless cake'—but as a matter of fact if you want cake at all you want eggs and milk and butter in it, else it isn't cake. So do as we do—do without it.

"Study your market reports. Find out what foods are cheapest and where. The housewife could do a good deal if she would run her house as she would any other business. If she would have a system about it and a schedule for it she could help a great deal.

"Another thing she should do—is to attend every hearing that there is at the State House that has any bearing at all on women, on the home, or on food. Oh, I know the men don't want us," laughed Mrs. Hebbard; "they said they didn't last year when we petitioned to attend the Fish hearings. We 'bothered them,' and they didn't want us around. But that's the time when we should be around—when they are doing things concern us.

"Just as soon as I found out that we were 'bothering them' I insisted on doing it. I believe that's about the only way that women can get recognition—just as the suffrage pickets at the White House did—to stay around until people know that they were there. If we can't vote, we can watch the men who do vote, and we frequently can find that we 'bother them' a good deal in that way."

WATCH AND WAIT.

"What is the answer, then, Mrs. President, when even humble bread and butter is almost a luxury, so expensive is the bread—and almost priceless is the butter?" was my query—for we seemed to be drifting far from the subject of food to that of suffrage.

"When prices are 'fixed' at such a high figure, what can you do?" came the answer. "What is there to do, but to watch and wait and work for the time to come when women can influence the 'fixing,' when the world is less money mad, and when the period of readjustment brings things to a more even basis.

"This is the time when everybody is worshiping at the shrine of the dollar. Until that time is over we can do little for ourselves but to bear it —and grin if we can."

BLOWS PUT HOLDUP MAN TO SPEEDY FLIGHT

Robert Patterson, a clerk at the Ginter Company, No. 3120 Washington street, Jamaica Plain, was opening up the shop today and counting change when a man about 35 entered and demanded money. He drew a knife as he spoke. Patterson, who was standing behind a glass case, refused. The man lunged at him, Patterson ducked, and the stranger's hand and knife crashed through the glass. Patterson landed two blows in the man's face, and the latter fled.

MAN KILLED BY AUTO, DRIVER OF TRUCK HELD

An unidentified man, about 45, five feet six inches in height, weighing 150 pounds, was killed today by an auto truck of the Suffolk Brewing Company of South Boston, driven by William J. Sullivan of Emerson avenue, South Boston. The accident took place in Keaney square, North End. The man, who was dressed in laborer's clothes, was rushed to the Relief Hospital, where he was pronounced dead. The police are holding Sullivan pending an investigation.

EXPRESSMEN CHARGED WITH LARCENY OF SHOES

East Weymouth, Nov. 20.—Frederick L. Hobson of Cohasset, and George F. Vincent of Huntington avenue, Boston, the former manager, and the latter an employe of the American Express Company's office here, were arrested charged with larceny. Shoes belonging to a Boston and Weymouth concern were found in the attic of the office. Both men denied the charge.

Paris Plans Monster Parade in Honor of Wilson

Paris, Nov. 20.—A monster procession through the Arc de Triomphe is being planned for the visit of President Wilson to Paris. All kings and premiers of the allied nations will be present.

STILL GUESSING OVER PEACE BOARD

The chief indoor and outdoor sport in Washington is trying to pick winners for the final makeup of American delegates to the Peace Conference.

President Wilson has the politicians guessing. To date there are eleven entries, or mentioned as the probable field from which the President will name his four choices.

In race track talk, Secretary Lansing figures as the favorite, with Senator Lodge as the "long shot," a very long shot at that.

Governor McCall was figured by the political tipsters today as seventh in the field of eleven.

At race tracks bookmakers post the odds they will give in the betting against the different horses. The favorite, of course, gets the lowest odds, or shortest price.

From a betting standpoint, the following odds were quoted today on the respective entries which have been mentioned:

Secretary Lansing, 1-50.
Secretary Baker, 1-10.
Charles E. Hughes, 1-1.
Secretary Houston, 7-5.
Elihu Root and Frank P. Walsh (coupled in the betting), 12-5.
Governor McCall, 4-1.
Justice Brandeis, 20-1.
Secretary Lane, 25-1.
Senator Borah, 15-1.
Senator Lodge, 100-1.
Colonel House (scratched).

With a price of only one to fifty, Secretary Lansing is regarded as a "sure-thing" favorite, bound to lead the field home.

While the quotation against Governor McCall is four to one, as the political bookmakers see it, he has only three entries to beat in order to land one of the four places, or be "in the money," as they say, in the betting ring.

9 HURT IN AUTO ACCIDENTS AT LEXINGTON

Nine persons, five of them soldiers, were injured or badly shaken up in two automobile accidents in Lexington. A government machine containing Captains Wadden and Williams, Lieutenants Donovan and King, Private W. J. Barr and Thomas F. Devine, a government official, all on their way from Camp Devens to Boston, was struck by an auto truck on the state road near the Cary farm.

The truck, owned and operated by Edward A. Comeau of Concord Junction, was without lights. Lieutenant King and Private Barr were injured.

Mrs. Fannie S. Woodruff of No. 24 Somerset road, Lexington, and Walter I. Woodman of No. 217 Bellevue street, Newton, each driving a car, collided at Hancock street and Hayes avenue. Both sustained injuries.

Boches Return 28 U. S. Prisoners for Two Packs of 'Pills'

With the American Armies in France, Nov. 20.—In the dying hours of the war a couple of German non-commissioned officers appeared in front of the American line with twenty-eight American soldiers, taken prisoner by the Germans.

"We don't want them! They announced. "You can have them, for a price."

"What's the charge?" shot back a husky doughboy.

"Two packs of cigarettes," was the answer.

"It's a bargain," said the doughboy, and amid cheers the Americans, men from Michigan and Wisconsin, rejoined the Yanks, while the two German "noncoms" grinningly pocketed the "pills."

SURGICAL DRESSING WORK OF RED CROSS CALLED OFF

Scientists Prove Father John's Medicine is Five Times More Nourishing Than Many Common Foods We Eat

When you are weak and run down you need a food tonic which will supply the nourishment which you do not obtain from your food. Careful tests by expert chemists have shown that exactly the elements needed for this purpose are contained in Father John's Medicine in a form which is easily taken up by the systems. The great food value of Father John's Medicine as established by scientific tests make it the ideal body-building tonic for all the family.

When a scientist states the food value of any product, he does so in terms of "calories" which he defines as the amount of heat used to raise the temperature of one gram of water one degree. A teaspoonful of Father John's Medicine contains 25,715.76 calories. The same quantity of steak contains only 10,714 calories. By these tests also it was proven that Father John's Medicine was five times more nourishing than an equal quantity of cod fish, seven and one-half times more nourishing than an equal quantity of oysters and almost six times more nourishing than pure milk.

The food energy which Father John's Medicine contains is exactly the kind of energy which is most easily taken up by the system and by the processes of nature turned into tissue or flesh. Because it does not contain any alcohol or dangerous drugs in any form, Father John's Medicine is the safe medicine for all the family.

CHILD'S TONGUE BECOMES COATED IF CONSTIPATED

If cross, bilious, sick, feverish, or full of cold, take no chances.

"California Syrup of Figs" can't harm tender stomach, liver, bowels.

Children love this "fruit laxative," and nothing else cleanses the tender stomach, liver and bowels so nicely.

A child simply will not stop playing to empty the bowels, and the result is they become tightly clogged with waste, liver gets sluggish, stomach sours, then your little one becomes fretful, half-sick, feverish, doesn't eat, sleep or act naturally, breath is bad, system full of cold, has sore throat, stomach-ache or diarrhoea. Listen, Mother! See if tongue is coated, then give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the constipated waste, sour bile and undigested food passes out of the system, and you have a well, playful child again.

Millions of mothers give "California Syrup of Figs" because it is perfectly harmless; children love it, and it never fails to act on the stomach, liver and bowels.

Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here. Get the genuine, made by "California Fig Syrup Company." Refuse any other kind with contempt.—Advertisement.

"I LOVE YOU JUST THE SAME," WROTE WESTON TO GIRL WHO SUES

Witnesses in $50,000 Action Swear He Called Her "Honey"

she said, he invited her to his home at Centre Harbor, Me., where she remained for ten days during the Summer of 1911. He told her, Miss Hite said, that she was the only girl he had ever invited to his home.

Miss White is a frail appearing young woman. She gave her age as thirty-three years. She wore a dark blue gown with a white lace collar.

She was followed on the stand by Miss Margaret H. McDermott, an intimate friend, with whom Miss White had been a fellow-worker at a Boston department store. Miss McDermott, in quickness of reply and readiness of retort, matched the rapid-fire questioning of Attorney Pratt. Her age was given as eighteen.

She told of the visit made by her and Miss White to Weston, to the latter's lawyer, when Miss White had deposed that she and Weston were not engaged. In the ante-room, while they were waiting, she said, Weston drew a bundle of letters out of his pocket and held them up, saying to the two girls:

"You must stand by me, because Miss Andrews is a crazy old fool. See what she wrote me."

He said to Miss McDermott, the latter testified:

"I spend you know nothing about Miss White. If you are asked anything about her say you are a friend," and to Miss White he said, the witness testified: "Be careful how you address me. Address me as Mr. Weston only, not as 'dear' or 'Horace.' And say that we are not engaged, because I have trouble enough as it is."

"I did as I was asked," Miss McDermott continued on the stand, "not for his sake, but for Miss White."

She admitted under cross examination that in denying knowledge of their alleged engagement she told a lie, but said she had done it as "a favor" to Miss White. On coming out of the lawyer's office Weston said to the two girls, according to the witness, "You are two good sports," and to Miss McDermott, "When I and Miss White are married and have a home of our own you will never want for a home or money."

She stated that Miss Andrews wanted Miss White to say that Miss White was not engaged to Weston so that Miss Andrews could win her case."

Miss Andrews some time ago brought action against Weston to recover property of hers which she alleges he holds.

Mrs. Anna Weeks of Marlboro and Mrs. Sarah Parmenter, aunts of Miss White, both testified.

Weston was on the stand in the early part of the day, under cross examination by Harvey Pratt, counsel for Miss White. References were made to the dispute arising over the claim of Miss Helen B. Andrews of Cottage Farms that she and Weston were engaged, and also to Weston's marriage to a Brookline woman, while claimed by both Miss White and Miss Andrews as their fiance.

"LOVE HER JUST THE SAME."

Witnesses for Miss White testified that they had seen Weston kiss her, pinch her cheek, and had heard him refer to their intended marriage, say that he would "always take care of that little girl," and heard him call her "honey," "sweetheart" and "dear little girl."

A letter introduced in evidence was written to Miss White by Weston while he was in Portland, Me., working for the late Mrs. Andrews, mother of Miss Helen B. Andrews.

Referring to the phrase, "I love you just the same," Pratt asked Weston:

"What did you mean by that?"

"I loved her as a person would who was going around with her for a good time," Weston replied.

Q.—Your letter says: "I close with a mailbag full of love." What did you mean by that? A.—She had sent me a small mailbag marked "Full of love," and I was returning it.

Q.—Didn't you have a real affection for her? A.—I used to have affection for her because we used to go out for a good time.

Weston testified that at the time his engagement to Miss Andrews was announced in a Boston paper Miss White went with him to a lawyer and made an affidavit that she and Weston were not engaged. Pressed by Pratt, he admitted that this was done at the suggestion of his lawyer.

Reference was made to Weston's denial of his engagement to Miss Andrews.

"ENGAGEMENT" A SURPRISE.

Q.—Announcement of this engagement came to you like a thunderclap out of a clear sky? A.—Yes.

On the trip to the lawyer's office, Weston testified, they were accompanied by a Miss McDermott, a friend of Miss White. He denied that he had told Miss McDermott he was in love with Miss White, but admitted that he might have told her that Miss White was in love with him. He admitted that he "might have" said Miss White was "a fine sport," but denied making the statement to Miss McDermott that he would "take care of her" for what she had done for him, after he and Miss White were married.

At one time, when Pratt's questions came so fast that the witness had scarcely time to answer before being asked another, Weston showed irritation and said:

SAW HIM KISS MISS WHITE.

"I am tired of listening to your questions."

Mrs. Emma Thasker, who formerly occupied an apartment in the same building with Miss White at No. 33 Cottage street, Winthrop, and her husband, Andrew Thasker, both testified regarding card parties which the four used to hold in Miss White's apartment. Mrs. Thasker declared:

"I have heard Mr. Weston say frequently that it was too bad we were so crowded in the apartment, but that when he and Miss White were married and had a home of their own they could entertain us. He said this in my presence only about a week or so before he was married. I have seen him kiss her, pinch her cheek, and have often heard him call her honey, sweetheart, and dear little girl."

The witness denied that "gay times" had been held in the apartment, in which Miss White had played a prominent part.

SAID MISS WHITE WAS "FOOLISH."

He denied that he had ever given Miss White liquor, except once when she had a cold; and denied that he ever had to carry her upstairs. He testified that Weston had said once, after drinking, that Miss White was foolish to have gone to the lawyer

Y. M. C. A. WORK OVERSEAS INCREASES WITH PEACE

The Y. M. C. A. work overseas is increased rather than diminished, according to a statement made today by Professor E. R. Greene of Dartmouth College. The general policy of the "Y," that of stimulating morale in the army, remains the same he declared. Professor Greene outlined four points in the educational problem that face the Y. M. C. A. work in dealing with demobilization. The opening of English and French universities to soldier waiting transports, the actual class work of the "Y," vocational training, and the teaching of soldiers and sailors by correspondence.

EASTERN LINES TO ABANDON MAINE

From what was probably the largest coastwise business in the country the Eastern Steamship Lines, Inc., which operates from the port of Boston, has curtailed and discontinued its service until in a short time only a two-ship freight service between New York and Boston will remain.

Following the announcement from Portland that the freight and passenger service between Portland and Boston, which has been in continuous operation for seventy-four years, would be discontinued at once, the officials of the company stated today that in all probability the service between Boston and Bangor would also be suspended in a short time.

Of all the operations which this company formerly conducted only one will be continued through the Winter. This is the Metropolitan Line freight service, carried on by the steamships H. F. Dimock and Herman Winter between New York and Boston.

At the outbreak of the war the Eastern Steamship Lines carried on service between these ports:

Boston and Bangor.
Boston and Portland.
Boston and Kennebec River ports.
Boston, Eastport, Lubec, Me., and St. John, N. B.
Boston and Yarmouth, N. S.
Boston and New York, with two big oil burning steamships, Massachusetts and Bunker Hill.
Boston and New York—Freight service with three steamers, the Dimock, Winter and James S. Whitney.

This service has gradually been withdrawn until only the Boston-Bangor trips and two steamers of the Metropolitan line remain.

Officials of the company said today that the high cost of coal and other operating expenses, including high wages, make it unprofitable to continue the service to Portland and Bangor, but that they hope to resume operations next Spring if the company can get back the ships taken by the government, and will go back to the old schedule as soon as conditions warrant.

REYNARD TO BLAME FOR HIGH VERMONT TURKEYS

Grand Isle, Vt., Nov. 20.—Because the Vermont lads have been hunting the German, instead of the wary fox, the family of Reynard has increased rapidly and feasted largely upon young turkeys originally destined for Thanksgiving dinners. At least this is the reason given by Vermont turkey raisers for the small supply on hand, and the high prices.

REPORTS OF NEW GRIP CASES EXAGGERATED

There is no danger of a general outbreak of influenza in Massachusetts, in the opinion of the State Department of Health. Dr. John S. Hitchcock, in discussing the matter today, said that out of the 1,020 cases reported yesterday many were simply cases of common colds. An inspector who went to Brockton to investigate the 121 new cases reported there reported that this number really covered all the new cases of the week and were of a very mild type. They found the increase due to the mixing up of crowds for the victory celebration.

SOLDIERS' ONLY THOUGHT NOW IS HOME

American Boys Unconcerned Over Occupation of Historic Spots, Says Runyon

By DAMON RUNYON.

With the American First Army, Nov. 12 (Delayed).—For the benefit of certain historians, some remarks by American soldiers, uttered at one of the greatest moments in all history, are here set down. They were collected while a column of infantry men was standing in a deserted street in the town of Stenay yesterday. The captain in command of the troops had just glanced at his wrist-watch. It was 11 o'clock. The officer called the war off for the time being. The men were looking around empty houses, kicking the mud off their shoes.

Then they spoke dramatically as follows:

"Well, she's off. I wonder when they'll send us home?"

"This is a helluva looking town. I wonder if we get anything to eat?"

"Who's got a cigarette?"

"Somebody gimme a match."

"That stuff in them bottles in that joint over there looks as if it might be a good drink."

"I wouldn't trade Topeka for this burg."

"I wish there was a first-class restaurant here."

"I wonder if that stuff in them bottles is beer. Those Heinies certainly know how to make beer."

"Well, the old war's over. I hope we hit nothing but high places till we get back to St. Louis."

"They tell me the ole Crown Prince hung out in this burg. I wonder which way that guy's running now?"

"Guess I'll see what's in them bottles at that. It might be easy to take."

About that time the order came to "fall out." Then someone changed his mind and another order, to "fall in," was shouted.

"Hell's fire," mumbled one man disgustedly, "I've got so all I know about this war is 'fall out,' 'fall in' and 'forward march.'"

Twenty years ago this writer saw the end of another war in which the Americans were engaged. That was when the Eighth Corps marched into Manila. It is a coincidence that yesterday he saw men from the same States represented in the lines which entered Manila among the troops that brought the Americans' part in this war to a temporary pause, at least in Stenay, the largest town before which the Yankees were fighting when the great "halt" came.

'98 AND '18 QUITE A CONTRAST.

There was quite a contrast between the two scenes. Twenty years ago Coloradoans, Minnesotans, Pennsylvanians, Nebraskans, and other Mid-Western Rocky Mountain States tramped into the teeming town where some 20,000 Spaniards had laid down their arms. There was a big flag-raising and much ceremony. They went into the city in columns, they had their generals at the head.

Peyton March, now chief of the highest American commanders, was in a column heading the Astor Battery with its formal, fifty-year-old guns. March was a captain then. There weren't as many soldiers in the whole corps that marched imposingly into Manila that day as there are in one of the numerous veteran American divisions which rest on their arms along the wide front in France tonight. Half a dozen machine gun companies still facing the beaten Germans could probably have taken care of the whole Manila army of occupation, minus the support of Dewey's fleet.

Yet, in the main, the soldiers were much the same soldiers who entered Stenay without any ceremony whatever, coming from the same sections of the country and acting much the same. They walked into the town like skirmishers instead of a column. They were nightily unconcerned.

LIKE WELL-KNOWN PLUMBER.

They went like a bunch of plumbers who had come to repair that leak.

The difference between Manila and Stenay was that Stenay was deserted save for a very few inhabitants who came out of their hovels, batting their eyes as if they had just been aroused from a long sleep.

The steel-clad shoes of the infantrymen yesterday who reached for block after block found deserted homes. Twenty years ago the streets of Manila were thick with people. Yet, twenty years ago, when the first conquering column came first to a halt in that town, the soldiers of that day looked around them mildly curious, and one fellow gave articulation to the general thought which permeated the minds of American soldier lads as now:

"Well, she's over. I wonder when in h— they'll send us home?"

A Proper Prophet

By MORTON BIRGE

When Kaiser Wilhelm took the throne in eighteen-eighty-eight
The commentators of that time in detail did relate
His personal appearance, his ambitions and his ways,
And mostly their opinions had excessive lack of praise.
One blunt describer beat the rest. He really seemed to know,
For here's the "write-up" that he wrote just thirty years ago:

"He appears to be a brutal, undutiful and imperious young man, with a small stock of sense and a very prominent military tendency, so that the sceptre of power in his hands bodes no good to the peace of Europe or the best interests of his empire."

For Hohenzollern horoscope that surely called the turn.
The chap who penned that "Personal" had prophecy to burn.

TO TRY ALLEGED SPY ARRESTED AT DEVENS

Private Stringfellow Charged With Tapping Wire to Divisional Headquarters

By THOMAS F. PHELAN.

Camp Devens, Ayer, Nov. 20.—Following his arrest on a charge of tapping the private telephone wire leading into divisional headquarters Private Percey H. Stringfellow of the 20th Field Signal Battalion has been ordered tried by a court-martial.

It was reported here that two sentries, while on duty at the entrance of the German government, were arrested Stringfellow and that they have been taken to Boston by Federal agents.

These is private telegraph wire which runs from the centre of Ayer, where the telephone exchange is located, to the divisional headquarters. Government agents charge that Stringfellow tapped the wire while concealed in a tree situated between the outside of the camp and the telegraph office in Ayer.

It is claimed that Stringfellow was able to secure information of confidential nature. This it is asserted, was given to persons with whom he is alleged to have operated.

Stringfellow is an expert wireless and telegraph operator. He has been in Virginia and has worked as a telegraph operator in Cincinnati, New Orleans, Pittsburgh and Baltimore. He was drafted while employed at Baltimore. He was sent to Camp Lee, Va., but was later transferred to Little Silver, N. J., from which point he came to Camp Devens.

For a time during the recent epidemic of influenza at the camp Stringfellow was employed as a telegraph operator. Government officials state that in this capacity as an operator Stringfellow received an opportunity to become acquainted with the telegraph switchboard at the camp and that he discovered the route by which the confidential wire entered divisional headquarters.

The committee announced that the drive will continue throughout Quincy for the rest of the week. It is the first time since the war started that the city has failed to subscribe her quota.

New York, Nov. 20.—Charging that twenty-five conscientious objectors have been subjected to solitary confinement at Fort Leavenworth, Kas., and that they sleep on cold cement floors between four blankets, and are given only bread and water as food, the National Civil Liberties Bureau today has on file a strenuous protest to Secretary of War Baker.

Not a Bite of Breakfast Until You Drink Water

dust as coal, when it burns, leaves behind a certain amount of incombustible material in the form of ashes, so the food and drink taken day after day leaves in the alimentary canal a certain amount of indigestible material, which if not completely eliminated from the system each day, becomes food for the millions of bacteria which infest the bowels. From this mass of left-over waste, toxins and ptomaine-like poisons are formed and sucked into the blood.

Men and women who can't get feeling right must begin to take inside baths. Before eating breakfast each morning drink a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to wash out of the thirty feet of bowels the previous day's accumulation of poisons and refuse and so keep the entire alimentary canal clean, pure and fresh.

Those who are subject to sick headache, colds, biliousness, constipation, others who wake up with bad taste, foul breath, backache, rheumatic stiffness, or have a sour, gassy stomach after meals, are urged to get a quarter pound of limestone phosphate from the drug store, and begin practicing internal sanitation. This will cost very little, but is sufficient to make anyone an enthusiast on this subject.—Advertisement.

BIG EATERS GET KIDNEY TROUBLE

The American men and women must guard constantly against kidney trouble, because we eat too much and all our food is rich. Our blood is filled with uric acid which the kidneys strive to filter out, they weaken from overwork, become sluggish, the eliminative tissues clog and the result is kidney trouble, bladder weakness and a general decline in health.

When your kidneys feel like lumps of lead; your back hurts or the urine is scanty, full of sediment, or you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night; if you suffer with sick headache or dizzy, nervous spells, acid stomach, or you have rheumatism when the weather is bad, get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys, to neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, cannot injure, makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water beverage, and belongs in every home, because nobody can make a mistake by having a good Kidney Flushing any time.—Advertisement.

ARMY AND NAVY AMERICAN

LIBERTY. BOSTON, WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 20, 1918. DEMOCRACY.

AYER ABSENTEES ROUNDED UP IN WORCESTER

By THOMAS F. PHELAN.

Camp Devens, Ayer, Nov. 20.—A large number of soldiers absent without leave from this cantonment were rounded up in hotels and other places in Worcester by the flite squad of this city and the provost guard. The men were brought here, and after their names were taken turned over to military units to which they were attached. Some will be court-martialed.

The work of locating the men took considerable time, as many were quartered in second-class hotels and it was necessary to exercise good judgment and proceed cautiously. Many of the soldiers hired rooms in hotels and had bootleggers fetch them liquor from the hotel bars. The proprietors of the hotels may lose their licenses for harboring intoxicated soldiers.

Several hundred gallons of whiskey apportioned in pint and half pint flasks, were taken from the soldiers and brought here with them. This contraband, as those call it was "given a decent burial" in "Barley Corn Cemetery," near the provost guard quarters.

NURSES BANQUET GUESTS.

Five companies comprising the 35th Machine Gun Battalion, will this evening make merry in the main building of the Knights of Columbus. A first-class entertainment, boxing and wrestling bouts will be the dominant features.

All men of the medical units and base hospital have joined to make the banquet in the Auditorium Friday night a success. The army nurses will be guests. Later in the evening dancing will be enjoyed in Hut No. 1 of the Knights of Columbus near the main road.

An inspection of the different huts or the latter organization was made by Nancy Cushion, supervisor of the Knights of Columbus, War Camp Work, who was shown around by William E. Kerrish, publicity secretary. Kerrish received a letter from Cardinal O'Connell extending his blessing and complimenting him for his literary work.

That the Provost Guard will be merged with one of the infantry regiments here before the mustering out of the men takes place is a foregone conclusion.

BARBER SHOP UNSANITARY.

Conditions at a barber shop in Ayer are of such an unsanitary nature that all members of the Plymouth Division have been requested not to patronize the place until further notice.

Six hands playing in unison, hundreds of toy balloons flying several hundred feet in the air and perforated by members of machine gun company will be features of the military carnival, to be held next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

'Tack' Hardwick Home After Service Overseas

Captain Huntington R. ("Tack") Hardwick, the famous Harvard quarterback who has been overseas for several months in command of the 105th Trench Mortar Battery, is at his home in Quincy.

He was sent by his commanding officer in France to this country to bring another battery back to France, and landed here just in time for the peace celebration. Captain Hardwick took part in the big drive in the Argonne forest, shortly before leaving for America.

RADIO STUDENTS AWAIT ORDER TO DISBAND

U. S. Naval Radio School, Cambridge, Nov. 20.—Speculation continued to blossom forth among students at the Radio School today with respect to the proposed demobilization of the navy personnel which was enlisted "for the duration of the war."

Following the published announcement that the Navy Department would at once begin the reduction of naval personnel and release those who seek release in order that they may return to their homes, many here were of the opinion that they would not long remain at this station. All were anxiously awaiting some word or indication from officials in charge as to when the demobilization, if any, at this station will be begun.

It has not yet been learned if the government will dismantle the radio school. The big plant has been kept at a high plane of efficiency during its existence and some were of the belief that the government would not return it to Harvard University for several months to come. There was nothing to substantiate that belief, however, inasmuch as rumors and speculation of all sorts are plentiful—too plentiful, it is said, to permit of any logical deduction as to the Navy Department's plans.

THANKSGIVING DAY

It is a time honored and beautiful custom in the Commonwealth for the people to set apart one day each year after harvest time has passed to give devout thanks to Almighty God for the blessings they have received during the year. Mildred Assures Honora She Has No Intention of Marrying Any One, to the Latter's Relief

Copyright, 1918, Star Co.

CHAPTER IX

AS [illegible] been said Mildred Trent's [illegible] ... affairs. And [illegible] comfortable.

So on the Monday morning following Arthur's declaration of affection she awoke and lay still for a few moments remembering that the last words that she and her sister had exchanged before going had been decidedly [illegible].

Then [illegible] towards Honora she recalled all that had taken place.

One thing she realized that was that [illegible] under [illegible] fixed on the [illegible] side of [illegible] she did not know [illegible] was awake and [illegible] had time to note [illegible] sister's face was very grave and her eyes moody [illegible].

Honora had been cross last night. Yet perhaps she had not meant it. But why had she resented the fact that her younger sister had refused Arthur Bruce? What business was it of hers?

Then all at once, what she believed might be an explanation of her sister's displeasure occurred to her.

Honora was so anxious to see her, Mildred, safely settled in life that she had hoped she was going to marry Arthur [illegible].

The idea seemed very feasible. All Honora's actions pointed in that direction.

She had appeared to be especially interested in Arthur lately, and had spoken in his favor and as his champion whenever an opportunity to do so offered itself.

On the automobile drive, she had offered to sit by Mrs. Bruce—undoubtedly with the intention of throwing the two young people together.

The following night Honora had taken herself off to church with Mrs. Higgins so that Arthur might have a fair field and every chance to say what was in his heart.

And in spite of all these plans and hopes, Mildred had refused him and had told Honora of it. No wonder Honora was disappointed.

It was but natural that, in the first flush of this disappointment, she had spoken a little sharply. She had only busied herself with this match-making scheme because she wanted her little sister to be happily and luxuriously settled in life.

A Free Field

Having reached this very flattering conclusion, said "little sister" decided to pave the way for a return to amicable and affectionate relations.

Rolling over on her side so that she faced the other bed, she stretched, yawned and opened her eyes.

"Hello, sister!" she said cheerily. "What are you looking so sad [illegible]?"

"[I] was looking sad?" Honora parried. [illegible]

Mildred decided that the best way to [illegible] desired point was by a direct and short route. She spoke [illegible].

"[Say], Honora, what's the use of being [illegible] because of what I said last night? You were cross, you know. [illegible] I am going to [illegible] told you that I did [illegible] Arthur [illegible] that [illegible] or either [illegible] understand."

Honora started violently, her face [illegible].

"[Understand]? What do you [mean]?" she demanded.

Too Young to Marry

"You dear old Goose," she teased. "I understand that you fancy if I were to marry Arthur I would be safe for ever afterward. I know also that you have hoped I would do so, and have planned in a harmless way to bring it about. You see you cannot deny it!"

"But—but—I can; you don't understand. That is—" Honora began confusedly.

But her sister's merry laugh at [her] [illegible] denial, checked her [illegible] of her speech.

[illegible] I see through it [illegible] as anything [illegible] you were only thinking of what you really imagined would be the best thing for me and for my future. But dear sister, I don't want to marry anybody yet—even to please you."

"You are entirely mistaken, Milly," Honora forced herself to say. "I do not want you to marry yet. You are only eighteen, remember—and of course that is too young—"

"Of course you do not want me to get married yet," Mildred [interrupted]. "[But] you would like [me] to be engaged to Arthur [illegible] the course of a year [illegible]."

"[But] Honora, I just can't! For I don't [illegible] and I never could [illegible]. You would [illegible] those [illegible]?"

"Most certainly [not]," Honora declared emphatically. Then to the younger girl's astonishment, she put her arms about her and kissed her. "I am so sorry I spoke as sharply as I did last night, dear," she murmured.

"Oh, that's all right," Mildred said easily. "Now that you understand you are satisfied, aren't you?"

"Yes," Honora replied. "I am satisfied."

To Be Continued.

When a Girl Marries

A NEW SERIAL OF YOUNG MARRIED LIFE

By Ann Lisle

CHAPTER XLVI.

Copyright, 1918, by King Features Syndicate, Inc.

"BETTY BRUCE—she's a friend of Jim's. He met her abroad," I replied in a tone I struggled to keep even and uncolored by a new phase of the jealousy Betty always caused me.

But all during the rest of the evening that fear grew. For the Virginia who was revealed to Betty was warm, interested, gracious, anxious to please. Without effort Betty evoked in Jim's sister a friendly warmth I had struggled in vain to summon. In a child[ish] premonition I was myself "outside the pale" and Betty and Virginia—friends.

Before Virginia's dinner at the Rochambeau was over I issued invitations to our postponed family dinner.

And all during the day of my party, while I was deep in nervous yet hopeful preparations for it, I remembered Jim's delight because I leaned across the table in the little card room issuing a laughing mandate to Betty and Terry.

"You two are included because you're our closest friends — Jim's 'war family.' So you'll break all engagements and come, won't you?"

They accepted, and Virginia cried with real enthusiasm:

"How jolly of you, Anne, and how [illegible] of you two to cancel your appointments for us."

The first thing I had done to win Virginia's complete approval was to invite Betty Bruce to dinner.

It started with fine promise when Terry arrived and said in his rich, delightful voice: "I can see that this is going to be a top-hole party." And it was—at first.

When Virginia praised my cooking I thought I should expire of joy. To think of stately Virginia's discussing mere food! All through dinner I felt exuberantly uncertain [that] my party was a real success. Even the percolator worked, and the cream poured out thick and rich.

The janitor's wife came up to do the dishes for me—and after Phoebe and Neal and I had cleared the refector table and I had returned to "play [illegible]," as Neal put it, some one suggested that we have a go at poker. That someone was Jim.

He [illegible] card games except bridge [illegible] of this [illegible] prefer to stay out [illegible] a sudden glimpse of Neal and Phoebe—champ[ion] [illegible] on the big couch, quite absorbed in each other. So I played poker. Or tried to.

The game ended abruptly an hour later—for suddenly Virginia discovered that happy little group of two, and decided that she wanted a chatty evening. She sent Phoebe into the bedroom for her bag [illegible] and then strolled [to] the couch and sat down [illegible] of it with a complete air of [illegible] the [illegible].

Virginia [illegible] a graceful shoulder [illegible] irritably.

Her Innocence.

An old woman wearing a black bonnet, boarded a train and, after calmly surveying everything in the compartment, turned to a red-haired boy and pointing to the communication cord asked: "What's that?"

"That's the bell for the waiter in the dining car."

She thereupon hooked the end of her parasol over the cord and gave it a vigorous jerk. Within a few moments the train came to a stop.

The guard rushed in and asked, "Who pulled that bell cord?"

"I did," calmly replied the old lady.

"Well, what do you want?" said the guard.

"A cup of coffee and a ham sandwich."

DOING LOTS ON A SMALL SALARY

By Loretto C. Lynch.

"HE must make a wonderful salary," yawned Mrs. Shiftless as she looked out of the window at Smith and his wife and two kiddies going out for a Sunday afternoon stroll.

"[illegible] good grafter, he is," [said] Mr. Come-day-go-day from [the window] of the next apartment. [illegible] from the firm forty dollars a week, just like my husband, but he got some good graft somewhere. We don't live as they do. We [can't] afford to."

No, gentle reader, Smith was no grafter [illegible] forty dollars a week [illegible] earnings. Yet every [illegible] the Smiths were the best-dressed Sunday strollers in the neighborhood.

The secret? The Smiths had learned in the early years of wedded life that one of the things that make for marital happiness was a sound financial foundation. They thought of the wrecked marriages of a number of their friends and decided that nine times out of ten [illegible] the beginning of the [end].

When Mrs. Smith wanted a new Winter coat [illegible] Mr. Smith knew whether or not it could be afforded. It wasn't necessary for Mrs. Smith to assault her spouse nor break up the family china if he remarked that [illegible] were better to [illegible] they could collect January's interest on their savings before purchasing the same.

Smith kept $5 each week out of his earnings and Mrs. Smith managed [illegible] $35. Long ago [illegible] were not for a [illegible] a week he found he [illegible] for carfare and a light lunch at [the] soda fountain each day. If he found, perchance, he had [a] dollar or so left at the end of a week, that money went into a little [fund] called the "Particular Treat Fund."

It took many months before he could buy these, and it required more than one little sacrifice, but at last the great night came. And again the neighbors nodded, "graft."

Mrs. Smith managed the other $35. She paid $7 per week for a small heated apartment. By careful [illegible] she was able to provide her family with [illegible] plain, nourishing food for $7 a week. Two dollars a week was set aside for the clothing fund.

The Zeppelin's Passenger

By E. PHILLIPS OPPENHEIM

An Absorbing War-Time Novel Based on the Adventures of a German Spy in England

CHAPTER XI.—Continued

SIR HENRY [smiled] a little impatiently. Directly the door was closed he rose to his feet, stood for a moment listening by the side of his fishing cabinet, then opened the glass front and touched the spring. With the aid of a little electric torch which he took from his pocket, he studied particularly a certain portion of the giant chart, made some measurements with a pencil, some notes in the margin, and closed it up again with an air of satisfaction. Then he resumed his seat, drew a folded slip of paper from his breast pocket, a chart from another, turned up the lamp and began to write. His face, as he stooped low, escaped the soft shade and was for a moment almost ghastly. Every now and then he turned and made some calculations on the [illegible] paper by his side. At last he leaned back with a little sigh of relief. He had barely done so before the door behind him was opened.

"Are you going to stay in here, Ma[illegible], or are we going into the drawing-room?" Nora asked.

"In here, I think," he heard Philippa reply.

Then they both came in, followed by Helen. Nora was the first to see him and rushed forward with a little cry of surprise.

"Why, here's Dad!" she exclaimed, flinging her arms around his neck. "Daddy, how dare you be sitting here all by yourself whilst we are [having] dinner! When did you get [back]? What a fish!"

Sir Henry closed down his desk, embraced his daughter, and came forward to meet his wife.

"This fellow isn't one, Nora," he agreed. "Well, Philippa, how are you? Pleased to see me, I hope? Another new frock, I believe, and in war time!"

"Fancy your remembering that it was war time!" she answered, standing very still while he leaned over and kissed her.

"Nasty one for me," Sir Henry observed good-humoredly. "How well you're looking, Helen. Any news of Jack yet?"

Helen attempted an expression of extreme gravity with more or less success.

"Nothing fresh," she answered.

"Well, well, no news may be good news," Sir Henry remarked consolingly. "Jove, it's good to feel a roof over one's head again! This morning has been the only patch of decent weather we've had."

"This morning was lovely," Helen assented. "Philippa and I went and sat up in the woods."

Philippa, who was standing by the fire, turned and looked at her husband critically.

"We have some men dining," she said. "They will be out in a few minutes. Don't you think you had better go and make yourself presentable? You smell of fish, and you look as though you hadn't shaved for a week."

"Guilty, my dear," Sir Henry admitted. "Mills is just getting me something to eat in the gun room, and then I am going to have a bath and change my clothes."

"And shave, Dad," Nora reminded him.

"And shave, you young pest," her father agreed, patting her on the shoulder. "Run away and play billiards with Helen. I want to talk to your mother until my dinner's ready."

Nora acquiesced promptly.

"Come along, Helen. I'll give you twenty-five up. Or perhaps you'd like to play shell out?" she proposed. "Arthur Sinclair says I have improved in my potting more than any one he ever knew."

Sir Henry opened the door and closed it after them. Then he returned and seated himself on the lounge by Philippa's side. She glanced up at him as though in surprise, and, stretching out her hand towards her work-basket, took up some knitting.

"I really think I should change at once, if I were you," she suggested.

"Presently. I had a sort of foolish idea that I'd like to have a word or two with you first. I've been away for nearly a fortnight, haven't I?"

"You have," Philippa assented. "Perhaps that is the reason why I feel that I haven't very much to say to you."

"That sounds just a trifle hard," he said solwly.

"I am hard sometimes," Philippa confessed. "You know that quite well. There are times when I just feel as though I had no heart at all, nor any sympathy, when every sensation I might have had seems shrivelled up inside me."

"Is that how you are feeling at the present time towards me, Philippa?" he asked.

Her needles flashed through the wool for a moment in silence.

"You had every warning," she told him. "I tried to make you understand exactly how your behavior disgusted me before you went away."

"Yes, I remember," he admitted. "I'm afraid, dear, you think I am a worthless sort of a fellow."

Philippa had apparently dropped a stitch. She bent lower still over her knitting. There was a distinct frown upon her forehead, her mouth was unrecognizable.

SEEK PRISONERS TORTURED BY GERMANS

Locked in Dungeons Near Huge Ovens at the Coal Pits of Luenen

London, Nov. 20.—Brutal treatment accorded by Germans to prisoners working in the coal pits at Luenen, is described as follows by an English soldier:

"Sick men, so long as they were able to stand, were compelled by sentries to continue working. Anyone who refused was beaten with rifles and bayonets until he began again, or, if this failed, he was forced to stand at attention in front of the sentry at the main gate until the shift had returned from work—a period of anything up to eight or ten hours.

"If the prisoners fainted or became too weak to stand and still refused, they were put into cells behind some big ovens where the air was extremely bad and the heat was fearful. They were sometimes kept in this place for two or three days, in the terrific heat, until they agreed to work.

"During this time no food from parcels was allowed, German food being the only kind, and the only way of quenching thirst was to allow any part of two bottles of water a day.

SOLDIER TORTURED.

"One soldier who refused to complete his task was taken out of the mine, dressed only in a shirt and drawers—it was too hot in the mine to wear anything else—and was put for the night in a hut which was not weatherproof. In the morning it was half full of snow.

"Next day he was taken to the mine again and beaten until he had finished his task.

"A Russian prisoner was shot in cold blood for trying to escape from the salt mine at Ehmem. A civilian, on the account runs, stopped him until the sentries got up to him. One sentry hit him on the head with the butt of his rifle, splitting his head open and breaking the rifle's stock. Two of them dragged him back by the arm.

"He was half walking and half being dragged along the ground. A sentry, without any orders at all, walked up to him and fired point blank at his chin. The bullet entered at the chin and blew away the back of his head."

MEN IN PITIFUL STATE.

Thousands of prisoners of war in a pitiful state of physical exhaustion were released by the Germans on the day that the armistice was signed and compelled to make their own way to the French lines, according to a British war correspondent at Nancy.

In writing of conditions on November 17, he says:

"There were 2,000 British prisoners of war housed in one of the big barracks of Nancy and they kept on coming in throughout the night. On the day that the armistice was signed they were told, in the various camps in which they were confined, that the war was over and that they could go.

"They were then marched, under guard, toward the French lines for varying distances, sometimes as much as twenty miles, when their guards left them, telling them they could march on until they reached the French.

GIVEN NO FOOD.

"In no case were any of them given any food to carry them through their journey. Some of them had walked four or five days before they got to the French lines and others from greater distances are still on the way. They are nearly all wretchedly clad and their sufferings from cold alone have been intense. They look like wrecks of the most wretched degree.

"Of those who have arrived so far a large proportion seem to have been taken during the March offensive or later. In six months or less they have been reduced to a condition bordering on starvation, and there have been a large number of deaths, some during the painful tramp toward France since the proclamation of the armistice was issued, from starvation or dysentery, the latter generally the result of picking up potato skins or other refuse and eating it to stave off the pangs of hunger.

"Their state of physical exhaustion and the thinness of their poor bodies and the mental torture that is written in their faces is pitiable."

Don't Gamble With Your Health

If You Have a Cold and Neglect It You Are Taking Chances of Pneumonia

Got a cold and decided to let it wear off, have you?

This neglect and taking chances with colds is responsible for more deaths than the whole list of diseases. It paves the way for all kinds of disease, particularly pneumonia.

The cold settles down and attacks the lining of the lungs—then it is pneumonia.

Many "cough syrups" and "balsams" are dangerous. Their only effect is from opium and other nerve deadening drugs they contain. It is a temporary, stupefying effect, and the cold remains just the same and wears away the weakened body. It only disappears when its place is taken by a more serious disease like pneumonia.

Take no chances. Begin today taking Father John's Medicine which has had more than sixty years of success treating colds and coughs without using alcohol or any dangerous nerve-deadening drugs. It builds fighting strength to ward off disease.

NUXATED IRON

"Nuxated Iron helps put astonishing strength and energy into the veins of men and bring roses to the cheeks of pale, nervous, run-down women," says Dr. James Francis Sullivan, formerly physician at Bellevue Hospital (Outdoor Dept.), N. Y., and Westchester County Hospital. "I prescribe it regularly in cases of depleted energy, anaemia and lack of strength and endurance. There is nothing like organic iron—Nuxated Iron—to quickly enrich the blood, make beautiful, healthy women and strong, vigorous, iron men." Satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded.

QUICK RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

Get Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 17 years and calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, but a healing, soothing vegetable laxative.

No griping is the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action.

If you have a "dark brown mouth"—a bad breath—a dull, tired feeling—sick headache—torpid liver and are constipated, you'll find quick, sure and only pleasant results from one or two little Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets at bedtime.

Thousands take one or two every night just to keep right. Try them. 10c and 25c per box. All druggists.

EXIT BAN AND ENTER HEYDLER

By NICK FLATLEY.

Colonel T. L. Huston, president of the American League.

John A. Heydler, president of the National League.

That's the popular ticker in the primaries of the national pastime, which are now being held throughout the country. The game will come back in the Spring, and everybody admits that it should be changed a whole lot.

As far as we can see, it will be. Players will be offered greatly reduced salaries, though the fans will not be offered reduced prices, at all. That will change, the old game a whole lot, because the athletes will not be the smaller figures.

The stars, in our way of thinking, have always been worth whatever they drew. Of course, the magnates don't think that way, and will not, because it interferes with their dreams of great profits.

SAME PRICES—FOR FANS.

Just as sure as Germany is licked, there's going to be a long, loud howl on the part of the owners about salaries. They will tell the world that they are being robbed, etc., etc., etc. They will play for popular sympathy, hoping that the easily beguiled public will forget all about the not-distant and not-glorious past of baseball.

But the public isn't inclined that way. The word has come from the athletes who enlisted or took their chance in the draft that the real big leaguers of peace will come back to the ball yards from the battlefields of France. And the word of the boys over there goes nowadays.

Further, and to get back to our opening remarks, the grandoldpeople realize that Byron Johnson can't boost the game a bit by the way he tried to arbitrate the misdirige of the World's series last Fall. They realize, too, that John Heydler has been the real head of the National League to do, these many years, and now deserves recognition.

The meetings of both leagues are coming shortly. Some of the club owners will try to have the old days, while others will see that their real hope for success rests in granting the changes that the turnstile throngs want, and will eventually get.

MUST BE NEW RULERS.

Johnson, supported by the reactionaries of the American League, will be a candidate for re-election, even though he did maze the game a joke, both as a sport and a business last season. There will be a flock of candidates for the National League leadership, those in the scramble realizing that sports are due for a glorious revival, and hoping to be it on it.

But the fans remain, from our way of seeing things, that the popular ticker must be elected or the game fall into even worse disrepute than it has.

In a word, if the powers that are in on the game do not wake up to actualities they will find that the baseball bolsheviks are grabbing control.

Meantime, as we suggested back in war days, Colonel Huston is being boomed for the American League leadership, and as every fair-minded friend of the game has known for years, Heydler, has recognition coming to him.

CHIEF TURNER PROVES HE'S A GOOD INDIAN

By RINGSIDE.

A right clip on the jaw in the first half minute of the twelfth and final round, which sent Kid Norfolk, Panama brunette, to the mat, clinched the verdict for Clay Turner, Indian light heavyweight, in the final bout on the Armory A. A. card at the Arena.

The go was one of the most sensational ever put up by heavyweights in a local ring. Both battled for all they were worth throughout, in fact, from the tap of the bell in the first round the contest was full of "pep."

Although outweighed Turner put up a great fight and carried the milling to his dusky foe the greater part of the time. The Indian kept poking his right hand in Norfolk's face in the first past of it, and came back with solid right-hand uppercuts as the member from Panama came in.

After the first round, which was fairly even, Turner had a shade up to the sixth, when Norfolk took the initiative and slammed some beauties to the face with both hands, then smashing to the body. Turner appeared to have the better of the milling.

Norfolk started the seventh with a right cross and was doing fine till he ran into a stiff uppercut, when Turner took the lead. Norfolk came back before the bell and had a shade in this round.

The Indian, through poking his right to the face and working in stiff uppercuts to the body, evened up matters again.

At the bell in the twelfth they started swapping punches and one of Turner's swift rights caught Norfolk plumb on the jaw. He was up in a few seconds, but Clay gave him no peace until the negro got his bearings. They were fighting hard at the bell.

Referee Flaherty's decision in Turner's favor was loudly cheered.

Charley Parker was beating Girard Gianni to a whisper when Larry Connor stepped in the sixth chapter. Bert Jones won over Willie Green in six peppery rounds and Dan Kramer stopped Johnny Travers of Somerville in the second frame.

BOSTON POLOISTS LOSE AND TOPPLED FROM TOP

Worcester, which had a night off, was shoved from the top of the Class B ranks in Roller Polo League by Cambridge annexing an overtime battle at Mosstown, 5-4. At second the home team won from quincy, 9-6.

Tonight's card: Providence at Boston, Lowell at Quincy, Cambridge at Worcester.

Members of the Dartmouth and Brown S. A. T. C. units will be on hand for Saturday's game at Braves Field between these keen rivals, and blocks of reserved seats will be sent to Hanover, N. H., and Providence, so the rival rooters will be "bunched up."

The presence of these hundreds of weather-beaten, leather-lunged young khaki-clad soldier leaders organized cheering of an order that will arouse a tingling spirit among other spectators at the clg college game.

Brown's cheering leader will be M and N in the big horseshoe of the grandstand, while the Green's emblems will be huddled together in Sections Q and P.

GARDNER IN HUB FOR BATTLE WITH KILONIS

Pinky Gardner, who arrived in Boston from Providence last night, is one of the middleweight wrestling championship and the first man he intends to get rid of is John Kilonis, whom he meets tomorrow night at the Grand Opera House. As matters now stand Kilonis has a slight edge on Gardner with two falls and a draw won, but Pinky feels that he will turn the trick this time.

The match is at the regulation championship weight, best two falls out of three, to a positive finish. George Ventres, Berlin blacksmith, will meet some good man in the preliminary.

HURDLE CHAMPION TO RUN AT WAR FUND MEET

New York, Nov. 20.—Earl J. Thompson, national champion, has wired Frederick W. Rubien, president of the Metropolitan Association of the A. A. U., from Bermondsville, Ontario, where he is located with the Royal Air Force in Canada, that he will be here Saturday night for the special seventy yards high hurdle race at the Twelfth Record Regiment Armory.

This event is one of the features of the big meet which the association is conducting for the benefit of the United War Work Fund. Walter Smith, former Cornell University star and holder of the national junior high hurdle championship, has also notified the committee that he will be on hand.

English High and High School of Commerce were booked to engage in their tenth annual football battle on Braves Field this afternoon, kick-off at 2.15 o'clock.

Jumbo Levenson, English High's captain, planned switching from the pivotal position to left halfback. Roemer, the clever Commerce quarter-man, who missed the B. C. High battle, was carded to play at right halfback.

Captain Ring and Commerce's other stars were ready for the fray and the school's rooting section turned out nets would land right side up. Four 12-minute periods were to be played.

West Roxbury High and Hyde Park High were to meet in the District League series on Pierce Field, Roslindale, Roxbury Latin and Browne & Nichols formed the attraction on Nichols Field, Cambridge, while Brockton High rallied on Quincy High field.

STARS TO SHOW AT BALDWIN BENEFIT

All plans have been completed for the monster benefit for the family of the late Mattie Baldwin, which takes place at the Arena tomorrow night, and, according to Representative Tom Green—and Tommy ought to know—the biggest show of its kind ever staged in Boston will be given.

The leading boxers of the country will be on hand, not to merely exhibit in brother acts, but to fight. As the boxers know what's to be expected from them, the crowd, which, by the way, should be a whopper, will see real fighting.

Vaudeville acts from leading talent at the local theatres will also entertain. Anyone planning to see the finish had better be prepared to stay till about 2 a. m.

EDITORIAL PAGE OF THE BOSTON AMERICAN NOVEMBER 20, 1918, BOSTON.

N. Y. American Gratefully Thanks the People for the Most Splendid Endorsement Ever Given Any Newspaper in the World

On Sunday one million, twenty-two thousand, three hundred and ninety American families bought that many copies of this AMERICAN newspaper.

No newspaper has ever approached this achievement.

We stand amazed ourselves at the magnitude of the people's appreciation of the American.

For that is the overtopping reason for our enormous circulation gains.

If the people did not appreciate the American and trust the American all the efforts in the world would not persuade them to buy the American by the million.

It is our habit to look upon our readers as one big family, and never to forget that the American enters their homes as a trusted and welcome friend, and that it is our business to talk to them as a friend should talk—simply and helpfully and truthfully.

We believe that our readers feel that way toward this newspaper, and that they greatly rely upon its explanations of public problems and look to it constantly for friendly and useful suggestions and advice.

It is no light thing to know that the words one writes are going to be read in a million homes, believed in a million homes and confidently followed in a million homes.

The influence exerted by a newspaper that goes in this friendly way into a million homes—where live over three million people—is beyond calculation. It is undoubtedly the greatest single force exerted upon our public life.

We try to use that influence for the public good—to do our best, day by day, to promote right public opinion and to help progress and human betterment.

The sentiment we have oftenest in mind is the simple verse:

For the cause that lacks assistance,
'Gainst the wrong that needs resistance,
For the future in the distance,
And the good that we can do.

In that sentiment we do sincerely believe, and by it, to the limit of our powers and opportunities, we are guided.

And that, we feel sure, explains the wonderful circulation which the American has among the American people.

In other words, the American is so enormously popular among AMERICAN CITIZENS because it is an upstanding, square-dealing, truth-telling, one hundred per cent. AMERICAN NEWSPAPER.

Because it tells the truth.

Because it fears God and nobody else.

Because it can't be bought or subsidized or intimidated.

Because it has common sense and is not afraid to use it.

Because it thinks intelligently, reasons without passion, speaks with judgment and helps its readers to understand the events of current history, and—

Because it has originated and advocated all the most important progressive measures and policies which have been adopted during the past twenty years, and has never wavered for a minute in its support of the radical progressive reforms which are in the interest and for the welfare OF THE MAJORITY of the people.

And THAT is why more people buy and read and trust the American than buy and read any other paper in the whole world.

The largest circulation in the world!

That is our answer to the campaign of envy, malice and slander which has been made against the Hearst publications.

It is a CONVINCING ANSWER.

For what becomes, for example, of the false and slanderous charge that this newspaper has failed in Americanism when OVER ONE MILLION LOYAL AMERICAN MEN AND WOMEN buy this paper in a single day because of its STANCH AND STERLING AMERICANISM.

Is anybody fool enough to believe that we could sell a million copies of this paper to a million loyal Americans if this paper was not as devotedly American as they are?

Is anybody fool enough to believe that we could DECEIVE OUR OWN READERS?

Is even the New York Tribune enough of a fool—and you bet that's some fool—to believe such self-evident nonsense as that?

And don't think the mean and vicious attacks of the various controlled or hired agents and tools of the predatory interests ever bothered us. Bless your souls, we never cared a little bit about all that. Because in the first place we love a fight when it's for the right, and because, in the second place, there was that CIRCULATION BAROMETER GOING UP EVERY DAY under the warmth of popular sympathy and popular support.

Why, the American GAINED over 200,000 in circulation during the very period in which this subsidized campaign of envy and detraction was at its highest.

We doubt if it will ever be known how much money has been spent in this malicious campaign of detraction and defamation against the Hearst papers. Over three million letters have been put in the mail, with distortions and absolute forgeries, not only misrepresenting but actually misquoting the editorials in the Hearst papers, and these letters have gone to names that were not known to the friends of the Hearst papers, so that it was difficult to reach these people and refute these baseless scandals.

Newspapers have been hired to devote almost their entire news and editorial space to abuse and misrepresentation, forgery and falsification.

Corporation lawyers have been employed, corporation agents have been sent broadcast, Boards of Trade and City Councils, under the influence of big business, have been persuaded or coerced into attacking the Hearst papers.

And, finally, all the money that the predatory, profiteering and privilege-seeking interests can raise—and we all in America know how much money they have, as well as how much more they want—has been used in the attempt to disparage the Hearst papers. And still at the end of all that effort and all that time, the American has 200,000 more circulation than it had before the attack began, and it sells that circulation at a higher price.

The conditions and the conclusion of the Mitchel campaign are simply being repeated. The results of pretence and prejudice and false affectation of superior patriotism are the same in business as they are in politics.

The individuals back of such campaigns of malice and misrepresentation, with all their wealth, and with all their ability to exploit the public, still do not understand the public. They do not seem to realize that the American people are extremely intelligent and extremely fair; that they detect a lie and resent a lie; that they are all deeply and devotedly patriotic, and that they despise a hypocritical affectation of superior patriotism on the part of any individual; that they have come to know the Roots and the Parkers and the other liveried lackeys of the privileged interests. They recognize them by the badges of servitude they wear and by the marks of the corporation collars around their necks.

They know that these servants of privilege have not the public interest at heart, but only the interest of the profiteers who exploit the public. And when they see any movement led by these pretenders they know that it is a false movement, with a selfish and sordid, if not a discreditable, object.

The dummies and "props" of the privileged interests have lost power to deceive. The people see the wires that work them, the powers behind the scenes that move them.

And so the propaganda of the profiteers and predatory interests defeats its own object and merely serves to designate true friends of the public by making them the objects of partisan attack.

As a matter of plain fact, proven by the circulation figures, thousands of people have been convinced by the character of the attack made on the Hearst papers and the sources of the attack made on them that these publications have faithfully been serving the public, protecting the people from the depredations of the predatory interests, and for that reason incurring the hatred of these profiteering enemies of the public.

The publishers of the Hearst publications are naturally greatly gratified over the situation, greatly gratified at the vindication of the Hearst policies, greatly gratified at the increased circulation of the Hearst publications, greatly gratified over the increased confidence of the public, and the increased opportunity to serve the public.

This opportunity, so generously given, the Hearst publications will endeavor to the utmost to develop and deserve.

Is No Woman Fit? Unscrambling Railroads. Sharp National Conceit. Anarchy Against Anarchists.

By Arthur Brisbane

Copyright, 1918.

The President will soon name men to discuss peace conditions.

What woman is to go?

Women have supplied the men killed in war. They should be represented at the conference.

From the beginning of the war the nations called upon women to work, to sacrifice, to do the hard part and got none of the glory—and women responded.

Hungary is starting a republic and women are to have an equal vote.

Lloyd George, when he talks about the coming election, appeals to six million British women, who are to share in voting.

Men suggested for the peace conference are Root, corporation; Mr. Taft, amiable gentleman; Justice Brandeis, close thinker, able lawyer and Democrat; Samuel Gompers, labor leader.

It is not probable that Woodrow Wilson, who knows what women have done in war and what their interest is in peace, will decide that in the United States no woman is fit to discuss peace with men.

The arrival of troops in an enlightened American city, two days ago, stopped the mob murder of a negro, who had not been convicted, and indiscriminate killing.

One girl was killed leaning out of the window, a fireman was murdered while playing a stream of water on the mob. A construction foreman was fatally wounded, the fourth dead was an "unidentified negro," mentioned out of politeness.

This incident, showing that we still require a little civilizing on this side of the ocean, may help to take the edge off our national conceit. It is becoming a sharp edge.

To realize how quickly conditions can change, observe that the doings of the Kaiser are published in three or four lines, without big type.

News of the Kaiser actually "doesn't matter."

From now on he is only, as Carlyle would say, "a featherless biped."

Just where he roosts makes little difference to the world. A sergeant in his army is made a minister of state. There's a subject for sermons.

The Supreme Court refused to interfere, Mooney, accused of dynamiting in San Francisco, will be executed next month if nothing to prevent happens meanwhile.

There is a feeling of hatred against Mooney among those that for selfish reasons should be too wise to let hatred go as far as the electric chair.

Perjury figured against Mooney in his trial.

On the other hand, it is shown that Mooney preached anarchy and the use of dynamite. He was willing to kill not only those that he considered enemies of his "class," but to kill women and children innocent of offence against him.

Appeals for fair play and strict justice come with poor grace from one who advocates reckless killing.

But there is doubt of Mooney's guilt, and society should leave it to anarchists to commit murder on general principles, too.

Until it be proved beyond the slightest doubt that Mooney actually caused the murder of people killed at a certain hour, on a certain day, it is worse than unjust, it is a stupid blunder to execute him in the name of law.

The way to cure anarchy is not to use the methods of anarchy against anarchists.

Our smartest sayings often come home to roost with unpleasant new meaning. The late J. P. Morgan was well pleased when he said "You can't unscramble eggs," meaning that a big trust, once made of all sorts of business scrambled together, could not be unscrambled.

It was a good saying, Wall Street enjoyed it.

Now, people say to the gentlemen in Wall Street, "You can't unscramble railroads, telephones, telegraphs and cable companies.

"The war did the scrambling, putting them under government control, and when you try to unscramble them you find you have not only railroads, and telegraphs, but also the people opposing you in your unscrambling plan."

Government control will change to government ownership, insuring stability of employment and of good wages.

The big scramblers of Wall Street, if they are wise and want to escape the Bolshevik nightmare that sits on their stomachs, will encourage the best of national stabilizers—a great government payroll of men justly treated and well paid.

By K. C. B.

TO PRESIDENT Wilson.
WASHINGTON, D. C.
DEAR MR. President.
IN THE first place.
I WANT to tell you.
THAT I'M just one.
OF THE millions of persons.
IN THIS great land.
WHO PAY their taxes.
AND THE increased prices.
AND OBEY Mr. Hoover.
AND GAVE you their boys.
TO SEND over to France.
AND IF they suffer.
THEY SUFFER in silence.
BECAUSE THEY don't own newspapers.
AND THEY'RE not in Congress.
AND WHATEVER they say.
IT ISN'T important.
BECAUSE NOBODY knows them.
AND MILLIONS of them.
ARE IN little towns.
THAT YOU never heard of.
AND MILLIONS more.
ARE ON the farms.
AND WORKING in shops.
AND WORKING in stores.
AND SOME of them write.
AND SOME of them paint.
AND BECAUSE, Mr. President.
IT SEEMS to me.
THEY HAVE no way.
OF LETTING you know.
WHAT THEIR thoughts may be.
I'M WRITING to say.
THAT WHILE it's true.
I CAN'T speak for them all.
I HAVE an idea.
THE MOST of them.
WOULD LIKE you to know.
THAT THEY'D be proud.
IF THE history books.
THAT THEIR children read.
COULD WRITE it down.
THAT YOU were there.
AT OLD Versailles.
WHEN THE peace was signed.
AND THAT the voice.
THAT WENT out from here.
TO ALL the world.
THAT AMERICA.
SHOULD SPEND her blood.
AND HER great might.
FOR THE principles.
THAT GAVE her birth.
MIGHT SPEAK again.
FROM OVER there.
TO THIS new world.
THAT HAS come to be.
AND THAT this new world.
SHOULD BE made to know.
THAT THE torch that shines.
FROM LIBERTY.
SHALL EVER shine.
AS A guiding light.
FOR THE world's oppressed.
AND A warning light.
THAT A people live.
TO WHOM the right.
SHALL EVER be.
A MORE precious thing.
THAN PEACE shall be.

I THANK you.
